ALLIES READY 'DUNKIRK' IN KOREA

THIS IS JUST GOOD BUSINESS

County Men Setting Pace In Formation Of CD Unit

Pickaway County's country boys this week were setting the pace for their town brethren in weaving an active civilian defense program.

Members of the County Protective Association—about 100 strong—met in the courthouse Tuesday evening to hear how they could play a role in defending this area in case of enemy attack.

And at the same time, the protective group—originally organized to form a vigilante group against livestock thefts—became the first group in Pickaway County to take formal anti-Communist pledges.

The pledge, part of a complete identification setup for protective association members, reads as follows:

"I swear that I am not a member of the Communist Party, that I will support the Constitution of the United States, State of Ohio, that I will obey the laws of the United States, State of Ohio and the rules and bylaws of the Pickaway County Protective Association."

TUESDAY EVENING'S meeting was called by the association president, Ray A. Harden, and featured a talk by Col. William Warner, Ohio's state director of Civilian Defense.

Warner commended the county for taking up the CD banner, appointing a county coordinator and for making definite plans for a detailed program. He said Pickaway was among the last six of the 88 Ohio counties to announce formation of an organization.

Ben Gordon, former Circleville mayor and present president of the county seat's city council, said that he was "sure that other clubs and groups—both men and women—will follow the pattern set by the Protective Association and pledge cooperation with our Civilian Defense program."

Present for Warner's talk and ready to form their own cooperative CD organizations were representatives of the several small corporations in the county.

In his talk, Warner said that the state organization is formed around regularly-constituted authorities.

He said that the county setup must be the same and that community sub-organizations for CD should follow the same pattern.

At the top of the county organization are the mayor of the principal city and the county commissioners. They appoint the countywide director of CD (Gordon).

Immediately under the CD director are five divisional chiefs—personnel, information, training and operations, supply and health.

• • •

EACH OF THESE divisional chieftains has his own organization. They are:

Personnel — Legal, housing, evacuation, welfare organizations, records and personnel.

Information —Information and air raid warning.

Training and Operations—Plans, training, communications, law enforcement, fire and rescue and chemical.

RECENT IMPRESSION WRONG

U.S. To Use A-Bomb Only If War 3 Starts, Claim

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 — An authoritative Washington personage asserted categorically today that President Truman will unleash the atomic bomb again only if the survival of the United States is at stake.

This high source said:

"I the atomic bomb is dropped again on a hostile country, the third world war will be irretrievably begun.

"The President does not intend precipitating a third world war."

This source stated the President has no intention, despite the critical situation of UN military forces in Korea, of using the A-bomb against Red China in the present crisis.

The source can be identified only as a person, who, through long association with the President, is thoroughly versed in his basic policies.

PRESIDENT Truman and Prime Minister Attlee are expected to announce at the conclusion of their meetings today that the atom bomb will not be used in Korea. It is also known that the President agreed to consult with Great Britain and other close Allies before ordering the bomb used in the future anywhere in the world.

At the same time, it was stated at the White House the President did not intend to give any impression in his news conference last Thursday that he was considering use of the A-bomb against Red China, despite full-scale intervention of Chinese Communist armies in Korea.

The White House source insisted the President did not realize at the time that he was giving such an impression.

This source said the President was discussing the atomic bomb in the light of any and all weapons that would be brought into use if the United States is forced to fight for its survival and that of other free nations.

Under U. S. law, the President is vested with the sole power to issue the order for use of atomic weapons. The bombs and other A-weapons are in the custody of the Atomic Energy Commission, a civilian body. A presidential order would be the sole means of turning the weapons over to the military for use.

• • •

THE HIGH authority discussed presidential A-bomb policy, as he understands it, this way:

1. Use of the A-bomb in Korea or Manchuria now would precipitate, rather than stop, a third world war.

2. U. S. government policy is to do everything possible to avert such a war.

3. Therefore, the President would not order the A-bomb used against Red China.

4. A presidential decision to use atomic weapons would be made only in event it became apparent, beyond all doubt, that an all-out attack was being launched by Communist nations against the free world.

5. In this situation the survival of the U. S. as a nation would be at stake.

The authority said further:

"The A-bomb is a weapon for use against vital strategic targets such as a large industrial city. There are conceivable instances when military forces might be so concentrated as to offer a worthwhile target for an A-bomb, such as a beachhead operation, but such instances are few in war."

Loyalty Oath Forms Readied

Pickaway County Prosecutor Guy Cline is drawing up loyalty oath forms to be signed by public office holders in the county.

The forms, prepared at the request of the county commissioners, will be left in the county auditor's office in Pickaway Courthouse.

Commissioner William Goode said that no office holders will be compelled to sign.

"But if they want to, the forms will be there," he said. "They can go in and get them."

4 Major Items Discussed In Brief City Council Meet

Circleville city council met in regular session Tuesday evening—but only briefly.

The lawmakers had no ordinances for consideration, no resolutions for adoption and no themes for oratory. The meeting adjourned half an hour after it opened. In that time the solons:

1. Accepted a city financial report for November.

2. Listened to a report from City Solicitor George Gerhardt on opening an alley in the southend.

3. Commended Circleville merchants for their help in removing snow from city streets last week.

4. Heard a request from Safety Director C. O. Leist to change a civil service rule to make possible the appointment of out-of-town men to the police department.

IN REPORTING on the city finances George Crites, chairman of the finance committee, pointed out that the parking meter collection was down—$1,079—because of the snow that clogged city streets last week, making meters useless.

Crites said he had been told by the county budget commission that more money would be distributed to the city next year.

He said that the finance committee in checking over hospital bonds to be turned over to Berger hospital board of governors had discovered $2,000 in bonds in an envelope marked "sinking fund."

"The fund was established about 1903, and it's still alive," Crites continued. "We don't know what the fund was for. All we know is that the bonds will mature about 1956. So all we can do is let them mature, then try to get the money out."

Solicitor Gerhardt advised the lawmakers that the safest procedure for opening an alley between Weldon avenue and Starkey Alley would be to ask the property owners to give the city a quit claim deed to the strip of land the alley would occupy.

This, he said, would prevent any possible dispute arising in the future over the city opening an alley after it had been unused for the legal limit of 21 years.

Gerhardt explained that property owners have built across the route of the alley, and that the buildings may have been there 21 years. Under law in this case the alley reverts to adjoining property owners.

"IF THE PEOPLE along the route of the alley want it opened, I don't see why they would object to giving us a quit claim deed. Then council could adopt a resolution accepting it," Gerhardt said.

Safety Diretor Leist asked council to change the wording of a city ordinance to permit out-of-town men to serve on the city police force.

He said the change was needed because of the difficulty in building up an eligibility list from city candidates. The ordinance requires candidates for the police force to be residents of Circleville for "three or four years," Leist explained.

He added that the residence requirement is set by city ordinance. Other civil service rules are set by the state.

Councilman Joe Brink suggested that the residence rule be changed to take in a five-mile radius of Circleville. Other councilmen joined Leist in asking for the whole of Pickaway County to be included.

The matter was turned over

WITH THE FALL OF FLAMING PYONGYANG (1), UN forces were in retreat from the outflanked capital. To the eastward, the Red Chinese hordes were striking at Majon (2), just 15 miles from the vital coast port of Wonsan. At Hagaru (3), two regiments of Marines, fighting their way out of a trap near the Changjin Reservoir, were able to join forces coming to their aid from Hamhung (4). The nearby port city of Hungnam reportedly was the UN goal for a Dunkirk-style evacuation. Allied troops that reached the Manchurian border at Hyesanjin (5) now are fighting their way southward toward the sea coast.

House OKs Tax Hike

Senate Approval Expected Soon

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—Overwhelming House approval of an excess profits tax on corporations forecast today final enactment this month of the new multi-billion dollar levy.

The tax legislation was passed last night by the House by a vote of 378 to 20 after two days of general debate. It will raise up to $4.6 billion a year in new revenue.

Sen. George, (D) Ga., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, expressed confidence that the upper chamber also will act favorably before Christmas.

It was anticipated that the measuure will be sent to President Truman for his signature before the end of the year. Congress will then adjourn sine die.

The House measure imposes a 75 percent tax on profits in excess of a corporation's average 1946-49 earnings. In addition, the 75 percent tax is levied on 15 percent of pre-Korean war profits.

Congressional tax experts estimate that the tax will bring in an additional $3 billion on the basis of 1950 earnings and $4.6 billion in 1951 when corporation profits are expected to show a substantial increase.

Before approving the tax bill, the House rejected 252 to 145 a Republican substitute. The GOP proposal called for a 75 percent tax on excess profits, no tax on pre-Korean war profits, and a rise in the normal corporation income tax fom the maximum 45 percent to 50 percent.

Odds Against Appendicitis

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6—If you have a bellyache the odds are 100 to 1 that it is not appendicitis.

According to Dr. Edward A. Marshall, Cleveland specialist in internal medicine, at least 100 conditions may cause acute, sudden abdominal pains and it is the doctor's job to decide quickly which is responsible.

"In the event of abdominal pain," Dr. Marshall warned, "give nothing first, an anema second, food very late and a laxative never."

Burglars Enter 'Locked' Auto

CINCINNATI, Dec. 6—Dare McMulloigh of Chattanooga, Tenn., told police that a 16-inch television set, three dresses and a woman's coat were stolen from his car while it was parked on a Cincinnati street.

He couldn't understand it.

The car doors and windows were locked when he left the car. They still were locked when he returned.

PEACE EFFORTS BLOOMING

UN Assembly Called Into Emergency Parley By War

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 6—The United Nations General Assembly was summoned into emergency session today to start action on a six-power resolution complaining against Chinese Communist military intervention in Korea.

The assembly acted on request of the 14-member steering committee to give top priority to the resolution proposed by the United States, Britain, France, Cuba, Ecuador and Norway.

Meanwhile, a group of 13 Eastern nations, headed by India, initiated another action in an effort to end the Korean crisis. The group appealed to Communist China and the North Korean regime to declare that their forces will not cross the 38th Parallel. The nations asserted that such a declaration would provide time to resolve the conflict and avert the danger of World War III.

The appeal was signed by India, Burma, Egypt, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Pakistan, Philippines, Saudi-Arabia Afghanistan, Syria and Yemen. It was sent by special courier to Gen. Wu Hsiu-chuan, head of the Chinese Communist delegation to the UN.

ANOTHER DIRECTION was taken by Lester B. Pearson, Canadian minister for external affairs, who came out in favor of broad peace negotiations with the Chinese Communists "by every means."

Pearson said in an address beamed to Canada that he favored this course at the risk of being labeled an "appeaser."

In today's assembly session, it is believed certain that the delegates will brush aside the objections of Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky and instruct the political committee to act on the six-power resolution which calls on Communist China to quit Korea.

The resolution, substantially the same as that vetoed in the Security Council by Russia, includes the following points:

1. Calls on China and all states concerned to stop all aid to North Korea and to withdraw all military personnel from Korea.

2. Affirms that the United Nations holds the Manchurian border "inviolate" and that it respects Chinese interests in the frontier areas in Korea.

3. Insists that no action be taken "which might lead to the spread of the Korean conflict to other areas and thereby further endanger international peace and security."

4. Reaffirms that UN forces will remain in Korea only as long as it is necessary to reestablish peace and order.

5. Calls attention to the "grave danger" of continued Chinese intervention.

6. Requests the UN Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea to proceed to North Korea and to assist in the settlement of the problem caused by China's intervention.

Greatest Help For World Is Christianity

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 6—Pope Pius XII appealed to all nations in a pre-Christmas encyclical today to bring peace to the world through the pacification of hate and the application of justice.

"To achieve this," the pope said in urging special world-wide peace prayers, "nothing can be of greater help than Christian religion."

"The marvelous spectacle of fraternal concord during the holy year," he stated, "represents a warning and constitutes a solemn testimonial that all peoples do not want war."

Pope Pius deplored development of new weapons of "horror," but did not mention the atom bomb by name. The pope said:

"We who raise our mind above the sea of human passions and nourish paternal sentiments toward nations of all races, desire peace, security and a daily increase of prosperity for all."

"We recognize, however, that human means are inadequate (to achieve peace.)

"It is necessary above all to renew souls, repress passions, pacify hates, truly apply justice, arrive at a more equitable distribution of wealth, encourage reciprocal charity and stimulate all to virtue.

"To achieve this great goal, nothing can be of greater help than Christian religion."

Speaking of devastating modern weapons, the pope said:

"Man's genius — destined for other achievement—has devised war instruments of such power as to awaken a feeling of horror in any honest man; above all, because these weapons hit not only armies but often wipe out private citizens, children, women, the sick and holy institutions."

Civil Defense Parley Called

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 — Civil defense directors from the 48 states and 11 governors and former governors meet today in Chicago to map interstate aid in the event of an atomic bomb attack.

The meeting will be the first of the 10th bi-annual general assembly of the Council of State Governments which will continue through Saturday.

40,000 UN Troops Plan Escape At Port Of Hungnam

Naval Supply Base Of Wonsan Abandoned As Red Horde Nears

SEOUL, Dec. 6—The naval base of Wonsan was abandoned today by United Nations troops who were taken north in small boats to Hungnam where a big Dunkirk-style evacuation of Northeast Korea was in the making.

Under the enveloping pressure of Chinese Red hordes, Allied units of the 10th Corps, totalling perhaps 40,000 to 50,000 men, were fighting toward the escape port of Hungnam from the north.

Troop transports, guarded by American warships, and patrolling planes, were reported assembled at Hungnam to take the UN forces aboard and remove them over the Japan Sea, possibly to other battlezones farther south in Korea.

Wonsan, a port equipped as a naval base, was evacuated Wednesday as strong Chinese Communist flanking columns stabbed into the city's outskirts from the nearby coastal hills.

HUNGNAM, coastal exit for the nearby UN-held chemical and communications hub of Hamhung, lies on the north rim of the Gulf of Chosen and is some 60 miles by boat from Wonsan on the south shore of the gulf.

Abandoned Wonsan, which had served as the principal UN supply port for the northeast front, is 80 air miles north of the 38th Parallel and 95 miles almost due east of the enemy-recaptured North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Coming on the eve of the ninth anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack that plunged America into World War II, the seaward retreat from Wonsan overshadowed the day's developments on the Northwest Korean front.

In the northwest, the U. S. Eighth Army's forces halted their long retreat and deployed along a new defense line above the 38th Parallel and astride the roads to South Korea's capital of Seoul.

Vanguards of Red China's million-man invasion army already threatened this line's inland flank with a penetration to within 50 miles north of the 38th to a point 50 miles southeast of Pyongyang, retaken by the enemy Tuesday.

The Dunkirk-type withdrawal from Wonsan, which has a normal populace of about 100,000, was disclosed in terse field dispatches to Seoul from the disintegrating northeast front Wednesday evening.

Most of the troops removed from Wonsan were believed to consist of units of the U. S. Army's Third Infantry Division. It was expected they would be transferred to the transport ships reportedly massed at Hungnam.

THE HIGHWAY leading north from Wonsan to Hungnam already had been cut by Chinese Red forces and other Chinese had pushed within less than five miles west of Wonsan's heart when the port was evacuated by Maj. Gen. E. M. Almond' s10th Corps.

Forty to 50 miles above Hamhung, U. S. Marines and Army troops were waging a bitter struggle against overwhelming numerical odds to break out of Chinese encirclement below the Changjin reservoir.

The grim fighting raged through its seventh day over icy terrain in sub-zero weather.

Reports Labeled As 'Scandalous'

TOKYO, Dec. 6—"The entire effort to distort and misrepresent the causes leading to the existing situation in Korea represents one of the most scandalous propaganda efforts to pervert truth in recent times."

So declared Gen. Douglas MacArthur, United Nations commander, today in one of his most bitter statements.

He refuted the charge of British Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell that "MacArthur went beyond the objectives which we understood were the objectives at the beginning of the affair."

He also gave final clarification to the status of the atomic bomb in relation to his command, saying that the "use or non-use" of the bomb is something "not within the scope of my authority unless expressly delegated by the President."

MacArthur nailed down as "pure fabrication" the statement of one American radio commentator that MacArthur had agreed at his Wake Island conference with President Truman to a 40-mile buffer zone between North Korea and Chinese Manchuria.

The general's statement continues:

"It is clearly apparent from the record that the United Nations command at no time has deviated from the policies and directives given to it.

"THIS HAS BEEN publicly confirmed within the past few days not only by President Truman and Foreign Minister Bevin but from many other authoritative sources.

(Editor's Note: On Monday, British Foreign Undersecretary Ernest Davies repudiated in the House of Commons the accusation by Shinwell that MacArthur had exceeded authority vested in him by the United Nations in sending troops to the Manchurian border.)

"Any impression that, as United Nations commander, I am more than agent to implement policies determined upon

Truman-Attlee Parley Report Being Awaited

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 — The United States and Britain are expected to proclaim today their unity in defending the free world against Communist aggression.

Mr. Truman and Prime Minister Attlee continued their momentous talks today in the White House, despite the death last night of the President's close friend and secretary, Charles G. Ross.

The final communique on the series of three strategy talks is expected to announce that the atom bomb will not be used in Korea.

The heads of the two great English - speaking governments have also agreed that the United States will not use the atom bomb anywhere in the world before the President confers with America's closest allies.

This is understood to mean that the U. S. will confer with Canada, Great Britain and France at least before the President orders the bomb used.

Observers believe that the final communique will give a general, rather than specific, report on the discussions during the last three days.

UN Assembly Called Into Emergency Parley By War

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 6—The United Nations General Assembly was summoned into emergency session today to start action on a six-power resolution complaining against Chinese Communist military intervention in Korea.

The assembly acted on request of the 14-member steering committee to give top priority to the resolution proposed by the United States, Britain, France, Cuba, Ecuador and Norway.

Meanwhile, a group of 13 Eastern nations, headed by India, initiated another action in an effort to end the Korean crisis. The group appealed to Communist China and the North Korean regime to declare that their forces will not cross the 38th Parallel. The nations asserted that such a declaration would provide time to resolve the conflict and avert the danger of World War III.

The appeal was signed by India, Burma, Egypt, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Pakistan, Philippines, Saudi-Arabia Afghanistan, Syria and Yemen. It was sent by special courier to Gen. Wu Hsiu-chuan, head of the Chinese Communist delegation to the UN.

ANOTHER DIRECTION was taken by Lester B. Pearson, Canadian minister for external affairs, who came out in favor of broad peace negotiations with the Chinese Communists "by every means."

Pearson said in an address beamed to Canada that he favored this course at the risk of being labeled an "appeaser."

In today's assembly session, it is believed certain that the delegates will brush aside the objections of Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky and instruct the political committee to act on the six-power resolution which calls on Communist China to quit Korea.

The resolution, substantially the same as that vetoed in the Security Council by Russia, includes the following points:

1. Calls on China and all states concerned to stop all aid to North Korea and to withdraw all military personnel from Korea.
2. Affirms that the United Nations holds the Manchurian border "inviolate" and that it respects Chinese interests in the frontier areas in Korea.
3. Insists that no action be taken "which might lead to the spread of the Korean conflict to other areas and thereby further endanger international peace and security."
4. Reaffirms that UN forces will remain in Korea only as long as it is necessary to reestablish peace and order.
5. Calls attention to the "grave danger" of continued Chinese intervention.
6. Requests the UN Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea to proceed to North Korea and to assist in the settlement of the problem caused by China's intervention.

Greatest Help For World Is Christianity

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 6—Pope Pius XII appealed to all nations in a pre-Christmas encyclical today to bring peace to the world through the pacification of hate and the application of justice.

"To achieve this," the pope said in urging special worldwide peace prayers, "nothing can be of greater help than Christian religion."

"The marvelous spectacle of fraternal concord during the holy year," he stated, "represents a warning and constitutes a solemn testimonial that all peoples do not want war."

Pope Pius deplored development of new weapons of "horror," but did not mention the atom bomb by name. The pope said:

"We who raise our mind above the sea of human passions and nourish paternal sentiments toward nations of all races, desire peace, security and a daily increase of prosperity for all."

"We recognize, however, that human means are inadequate (to achieve peace.)

"It is necessary above all to renew souls, repress passions, pacify hates, truly apply justice, arrive at a more equitable distribution of wealth, encourage reciprocal charity and stimulate all to virtue.

"To achieve this great goal, nothing can be of greater help than Christian religion."

Speaking of devastating modern weapons, the pope said:

"Man's genius — destined for other achievement—has devised war instruments of such power as to awaken a feeling of horror in any honest man; above all, because these weapons hit not only armies but often wipe out private citizens, children, women, the sick and holy institutions."

Civil Defense Parley Called

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 — Civil defense directors from the 48 states and 11 governors and former governors meet today in Chicago to map interstate aid in the event of an atomic bomb attack.

The meeting will be the first of the 10th bi-annual general assembly of the Council of State Governments which will continue through Saturday.

40,000 UN Troops Plan Escape At Port Of Hungnam

Naval Supply Base Of Wonsan Abandoned As Red Horde Nears

SEOUL, Dec. 6—The naval base of Wonsan was abandoned today by United Nations troops who were taken north in small boats to Hungnam where a big Dunkirk-style evacuation of Northeast Korea was in the making.

Under the enveloping pressure of Chinese Red hordes, Allied units of the 10th Corps, totalling perhaps 40,000 to 50,000 men, were fighting toward the escape port of Hungnam from the north.

Troop transports, guarded by American warships, and patrolling planes, were reported assembled at Hungnam to take the UN forces aboard and remove them over the Japan Sea, possibly to other battlezones farther south in Korea.

Wonsan, a port equipped as a naval base, was evacuated Wednesday as strong Chinese Communist flanking columns stabbed into the city's outskirts from the nearby coastal hills.

HUNGNAM, coastal exit for the nearby UN-held chemical and communications hub of Hamhung, lies on the north rim of the Gulf of Chosen and is some 60 miles by boat from Wonsan on the south shore of the gulf.

Abandoned Wonsan, which had served as the principal UN supply port for the northeast front, is 80 air miles north of the 38th Parallel and 95 miles almost due east of the enemy-recaptured North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Coming on the eve of the ninth anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack that plunged America into World War II, the seaward retreat from Wonsan overshadowed the day's developments on the Northwest Korean front.

In the northwest, the U. S. Eighth Army's forces halted their long retreat and deployed along a new defense line above the 38th Parallel and astride the roads to South Korea's capital of Seoul.

Vanguards of Red China's million-man invasion army already threatened this line's inland flank with a penetration to within 50 miles north of the 38th to a point 50 miles southeast of Pyongyang, retaken by the enemy Tuesday.

The Dunkirk-type withdrawal from Wonsan, which has a normal populace of about 100,000, was disclosed in terse field dispatches to Seoul from the disintegrating northeast front Wednesday evening.

Most of the troops removed from Wonsan were believed to consist of units of the U. S. Army's Third Infantry Division. It was expected they would be transferred to the transport ships reportedly massed at Hungnam.

THE HIGHWAY leading north from Wonsan to Hungnam already had been cut by Chinese Red forces and other Chinese had pushed within less than five miles west of Wonsan's heart when the port was evacuated by Maj. Gen. E. M. Almond' s10th Corps.

Forty to 50 miles above Hamhung, U. S. Marines and Army troops were waging a bitter struggle against overwhelming numerical odds to break out of Chinese encirclement below the Changjin reservoir.

The grim fighting raged through its seventh day over icy terrain in sub-zero weather.

Reports Labeled As 'Scandalous'

TOKYO, Dec. 6—"The entire effort to distort and misrepresent the causes leading to the existing situation in Korea represents one of the most scandalous propaganda efforts to pervert truth in recent times."

So declared Gen. Douglas MacArthur, United Nations commander, today in one of his most bitter statements.

He refuted the charge of British Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell that "MacArthur went beyond the objectives which we understood were the objectives at the beginning of the affair."

He also gave final clarification to the status of the atomic bomb in relation to his command, saying that the "use or non-use" of the bomb is something "not within the scope of my authority unless expressly delegated by the President."

MacArthur nailed down as "pure fabrication" the statement of one American radio commentator that MacArthur had agreed at his Wake Island conference with President Truman to a 40-mile buffer zone between North Korea and Chinese Manchuria.

The general's statement continues:

"It is clearly apparent from the record that the United Nations command at no time has deviated from the policies and directives given to it.

"THIS HAS BEEN publicly confirmed within the past few days not only by President Truman and Foreign Minister Bevin but from many other authoritative sources.

(Editor's Note: On Monday, British Foreign Undersecretary Ernest Davies repudiated in the House of Commons the accusation by Shinwell that MacArthur had exceeded authority vested in him by the United Nations in sending troops to the Manchurian border.)

"Any impression that, as United Nations commander, I am more than agent to implement policies determined upon

Truman-Attlee Parley Report Being Awaited

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 — The United States and Britain are expected to proclaim today their unity in defending the free world against Communist aggression.

Mr. Truman and Prime Minister Attlee continued their momentous talks today in the White House, despite the death last night of the President's close friend and secretary, Charles G. Ross.

The final communique on the series of three strategy talks is expected to announce that the atom bomb will not be used in Korea.

The heads of the two great English - speaking governments have also agreed that the United States will not use the atom bomb anywhere in the world before the President confers with America's closest allies.

This is understood to mean that the U. S. will confer with Canada, Great Britain and France at least before the President orders the bomb used.

Observers believe that the final communique will give a general, rather than specific, report on the discussions during the last three days.

ties, transportation and supply.

Health — Sanitation, medical care, public health and professional training.

Stressing the need for an active CD organization from the smallest community up to the statewide bracket, Warner said that "we first must ask ourselves: 'What is the enemy?' "

Answering his own question and labeling the enemy as Russia, Warner said the enemy falls into three categories:

(1) Idealogical and psychological. He has been here for 30 years. His chief weapon is propaganda. He wants to create skepticism, doubt and complacency. To combat this, we must have better trained parents, schools and churches.

(2) The saboteur. He is a coward who would destroy our economy, wreck our industrial plants, utilities and means of transportation.

(3) The military. He comes with his armies and air forces, expects to subdue and conquer with force.

THEN WARNER asked: "What are the capabilities of the enemy?"

Besides conventional warfare, the enemy will have atomic warfare, Warner declared.

This means that one bomb will completely destroy an area a mile across, the blast effect will extend for an area of five to nine miles, the heat will run into the thousands of degrees, brilliant light from the blast will blind, radiation will bring untold damage and injury, panic will be a major factor and damage will extend a diameter of 50 miles.

Warner, a colonel during World War II on the staff of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in the ETO, stated flatly that "Pickaway County cannot stand by and ignore the possibilities." He added:

"Like the entire state of Ohio, this Pickaway County has far too many primary targets. When an atomic attack comes, there will be vast fires, utilities will be cut off, bridges and pipelines will be blasted and roads will be blocked. It is obvious that a Civilian Defense program is sorely needed here."

Parking Meter Collection was $1,079.00, while Admission Tax collection was $212.07.

Council also heard reading of a financial report from Mayor Thurman I. Miller. The mayor reported $134 collected in fines from state patrol cases, $5 from licenses and $115 from traffic and bonds, a total of $254.

Councilman Crites explained that the reason for the low sum collected for traffic and bonds was "because the city is short of police. Not as many offenders are being picked up and fined."

Crop Insurance Deadline Set

Pickaway County farmers who have insured their 1951 crop through Federal Crop Insurance Corporation are to report to the local Production and Marketing Administration office by Jan. 1.

John Boggs, local PMA chairman, said county farmers are urged to make reports on how many acres of wheat they have an interest in before the first of the year in order to benefit from a five percent discount.

Boggs said FCIC will notify the farmer of his premium cost in late January and the discount will be applied if the farmer pays the premium before Feb. 28.

at a much higher level is perfectly fantastic.

"In the light of events, it is now plainly evident that intervention in the Korean conflict by Communist China was responsible to basic decisions reached even before the North Korean attack last June.

"Communist China unquestionably pledged herself to use her full military resource in support of the North Korean effort should the necessity arise.

"It is perfectly clear now that whether our troops had crossed the 38th Parallel or had remained south thereof, the Chinese forces would have been utilized to rectify the situation resulting from the North Korean defeat.

"Even were this not so, the UN command would bear no responsibility as its proceeded north in compliance with UN resolutions and the implementing directives which the nations concerned had the full power at any time to modify had they so desired.

"THE EFFORT by some to attribute to the hydro-electric power facilities in North Korea the root cause for Chinese interest and consequent intervention is equally unrealistic.

"Engineers who have examined such of these facilities as have fallen into our hands have estimated that they have been inoperative for some months and that much of their vital machinery had been removed prior to the arrival of our forces.

"The statement that agreement was made at Wake Island to a British proposal that UN forces stop 40 miles south of the international boundary is a pure fabrication.

"There was no mention made of such a proposal at Wake Island. As a matter of fact, when the Wake conference took place, our troops were barely across the 38th Parallel and there was no proscription whatsoever upon the command, other than it should not violate the international border.

"Apart from this, it would be naive indeed to believe such an imaginary line would have influenced in the slightest degree the Chinese Communists in their monumental decisions.

"The use of non-use of the atom bomb is not a question which falls within the scope of my authority unless expressly delegates by the President."

Firemen Called To Douse Fuel

Circleville firemen were routed at about 4:50 a. m. Wednesday to wash gasoline from South Court street at the Crites filling station.

Station attendants said gasoline was being pumped from the bulk plant into the station tanks and overflowed onto the street.

City Government Gets More Taxes Than It Sought

Circleville corporation emerged from Pickaway County budget hearings Wednesday morning with almost $2,000 more than it asked for in its 1951 budget for the general fund.

The budget commission set the total 1951 tax levy for Circleville, including the school district, at 23 mills. Last year's rate was 20.10 mills.

The new rate means that property owners will be required to pay $23 tax on each $1,000 of property valuation.

The valuation for Circleville is $13,293,000, according to Fred Tipton, county auditor and member of the budget commission. For Circleville school district the valuation is $14,839,000. The school district includes territory outside the city.

GEORGE CRITES, chairman of city council finance committee, said $50,000 had been requested in the 1951 budget. The millage approved by the budget commission gives the city $51,844.

This is approximately $6,300 more than the city received in 1950.

"But it still isn't enough," Crites declared. "At the end of 1951 we will be from $4,000 to $5,000 short due to the increased cost of operation."

The budget commission allotted 9.80 mills of the 23-mill total to Circleville school district for general operating expenses next year. This amounts to $145,426.

Tipton said that the schools will get all that is due them outside the ten-mill limitation. Last year, the budget commission lopped off one mill when the school budget did not show need for the extra mill.

For bonds the school received a 4.20 slice of the total levy, amounting to $62,325.03. Of this $23,743.03 is for its old bond issue and $38,582 for the new bond issue.

In addition to the $51,844 allotted to the city for its general fund, the policemen and firemen's pension funds were also given .20 mill or $2,658 each.

FOR CITY BONDS .85 mill or $11,299.38 was approved.

Of the total 23-mill levy set for Circleville in 1951, distribution is as follows:

To the state, .20 mill; county, 3.40 mills; Circleville Township general fund, .05 mill; township road fund, .20 mill; school general operating fund, 9.80 mills; school bond fund, 4.20 mills; Circleville general fund, 4.30 mills; Circleville bond fund, .85 mill.

Other members of the budget commission are County Treasurer Robert Colville and County Prosecutor Guy Cline.

'Dunkirk' Is Readied

some elements of the U. S. First Marine Division succeeded Wednesday in smashing through gauntlets of Chinese crossfire over a seven-mile highway stretch south to Kotori.

At Kotori, these Leathernecks joined with other Marines and U. S. Army Seventh Division soldiers in a further battle to burst through enemy roadblocks barring their 43-mile escape road to Hamhung, Hungnam and the sea.

In this fighting, heroic retreat the American units were leapfrogging each other, taking turns at rearguard actions against the Chinese hordes trying to spring new traps along the way.

Swarms of American Airforce, Navy and Marine Corps planes kept up a continual battering of the Chinese Reds, killing several thousand, as they flew to the aid of the heavily outnumbered U. S. ground forces.

ALSO BELIEVED striving to fight their way south to Hungnam were troops of the U. S. Seventh Division's 17th Regiment which reached the Manchurian Yalu river border at Hyesanjin, north of the Changjin power resevoir.

These troops were ordered six days ago to retreat from their border position and make their way back to the Hamhung-Hungnam area, but there had been no recent word of their whereabouts.

Also uncertain was the fate of two South Korean divisions of the 10th Corps, but it was believed some of their troops were struggling south toward Hungnam or might be picked up by small boats to be taken south.

These were the South Korean Third and Capitol Divisions. The latter had advanced farther north than any other UN units, having sent spearheads up the far northeast coast to within 40 miles of the Korean-Soviet Siberian border.

New Driving License Being Misunderstood

Pickaway County motorists were warned Wednesday that many persons have the wrong impression about the new three-year drivers' licenses.

Joe Brink, deputy registrar of motor vehicles here, said many persons believe they have a 30-day grace period after their birthdays before they need licenses.

"Actually," said Brink," the license expires on the person's birthdate and if he drives after that he can be arrested."

The registrar said that a person is permitted to buy new license during a period 30 days before his birthday, but that the old license is no good after the birthday.

"What a lot of the people are thinking about is the 90-day period after the license expires, when they may receive a new license without taking another drivers' test," he said.

Representative Ed Wallace Due For First Duty

Pickaway County's newly-elected representative to the state general assembly, Ed Wallace of Circleville, will perform his first official act Monday afternoon.

He is to attend a caucus of house Democrats. The call to caucus was issued Wednesday by Representative Anna O'Neil (D-Summit).

The 36 Democrats will select a minority floor leader for the 99th general assembly which convenes Jan. 1.

Leading candidates for the post are A. G. Lancione of Belmont County and James M. Carney of Cleveland.

Mrs. Katherine McCubbins, 4463 Louisville Ave., Louisville, Ky., says she feels terribly sorry and wants to extend lots of sympathy to thousands of folks all over the country bothered with vague aches and pains due to a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron. Mrs. McCubbins says she knows how they feel because it wasn't too long ago that Mrs. McCubbins was just beside herself in knowing what to do about such misery. However, Mrs. McCubbins found out she had a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron and started taking HADACOL.

Here is Mrs. McCubbins' own statement:

"My nerves were so bad the least little thing would completely upset me. I was very thin too, —my husband says I was a walking shadow. I was just beside myself in knowing what to do. Then one day a neighbor friend of mine heard how other folks were being helped by HADACOL —she insisted I try it. I started taking HADACOL. Now I feel wonderful for the first time in years and years. I sleep all night long—I eat everything I want and never have a bad effect. I've gained weight — folks are amazed at the change in me. HADACOL is very wonderful —I just can't praise HADACOL enough."

Stop Feeling Bad

. . . do as thousands of others are doing . . . take HADACOL . . . yes, countless thousands are benefitting from HADACOL . . . whose systems are deficient in Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin. HADACOL is so wonderful because HADACOL helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals throughout your system—yes, to every body organ.

Give remarkable HADACOL a chance and if you don't feel better with the first few bottles you take—you get your money back. Only $1.25 for Trial Size; Large Family or Hospital Size, $3.50. There is only one true and genuine HADACOL. If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order it direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana.

ties, transportation and supply.

Health — Sanitation, medical care, public health and professional training.

Stressing the need for an active CD organization from the smallest community up to the statewide bracket, Warner said that "we first must ask ourselves: 'What is the enemy?' "

Answering his own question and labeling the enemy as Russia, Warner said the enemy falls into three categories:

(1) Idealogical and psychological. He has been here for 30 years. His chief weapon is propaganda. He wants to create skepticism, doubt and complacency. To combat this, we must have better trained parents, schools and churches.

(2) The saboteur. He is a coward who would destroy our economy, wreck our industrial plants, utilities and means of transportation.

(3) The military. He comes with his armies and air forces, expects to subdue and conquer with force.

THEN WARNER asked: "What are the capabilities of the enemy?"

Besides conventional warfare, the enemy will have atomic warfare, Warner declared.

This means that one bomb will completely destroy an area a mile across, the blast effect will extend for an area of five to nine miles, the heat will run into the thousands of degrees, brilliant light from the blast will blind, radiation will bring untold damage and injury, panic will be a major factor and damage will extend a diameter of 50 miles.

Warner, a colonel during World War II on the staff of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in the ETO, stated flatly that "Pickaway County cannot stand by and ignore the possibilities." He added:

"Like the entire state of Ohio, this Pickaway County has far too many primary targets. When an atomic attack comes, there will be vast fires, utilities will be cut off, bridges and pipelines will be blasted and roads will be blocked. It is obvious that a Civilian Defense program is sorely needed here."

Gasoline Tax Fund expenditures, $1,276.29, balance, $6,346.37; Water Works Trust Fund receipts, $35.00, expenditures, $15, balance, $1,000; Police Pension Fund receipts, $74.76, expenditures, $225.41, balance, $8,253.27; Firemen Pension Fund receipts, $56.70, expenditures, $125, balance, $8,128.81; Water Works Imp. Ext. Fund expenditures, $16,034.88, balance, $56,462.26.

Parking Meter Collection was $1,079.00, while Admission Tax collection was $212.07.

Council also heard reading of a financial report from Mayor Thurman I. Miller. The mayor reported $134 collected in fines from state patrol cases, $5 from licenses and $115 from traffic and bonds, a total of $254.

Councilman Crites explained that the reason for the low sum collected for traffic and bonds was "because the city is short of police. Not as many offenders are being picked up and fined."

Crop Insurance Deadline Set

Pickaway County farmers who have insured their 1951 crop through Federal Crop Insurance Corporation are to report to the local Production and Marketing Administration office by Jan. 1.

John Boggs, local PMA chairman, said county farmers are urged to make reports on how many acres of wheat they have an interest in before the first of the year in order to benefit from a five percent discount.

Boggs said FCIC will notify the farmer of his premium cost in late January and the discount will be applied if the farmer pays the premium before Feb. 28.

Radio Station To Honor City

Circleville will be honored on an half-hour radio program Sunday, Dec. 17.

Officials of Station WLW, Cincinnati, announced Wednesday that the well-known program, "On The Village Green," will salute the seat of Pickaway County.

William L. Querner, program coordinator, said the program will run from 2 until 2:30 p. m.

at a much higher level is perfectly fantastic.

"In the light of events, it is now plainly evident that intervention in the Korean conflict by Communist China was responsible to basic decisions reached even before the North Korean attack last June.

"Communist China unquestionably pledged herself to use her full military resource in support of the North Korean effort should the necessity arise.

"It is perfectly clear now that whether our troops had crossed the 38th Parallel or had remained south thereof, the Chinese forces would have been utilized to rectify the situation resulting from the North Korean defeat.

"Even were this not so, the UN command would bear no responsibility as its proceeded north in compliance with UN resolutions and the implementing directives which the nations concerned had the full power at any time to modify had they so desired.

"THE EFFORT by some to attribute to the hydro-electric power facilities in North Korea the root cause for Chinese interest and consequent intervention is equally unrealistic.

"Engineers who have examined such of these facilities as have fallen into our hands have estimated that they have been inoperative for some months and that much of their vital machinery had been removed prior to the arrival of our forces.

"The statement that agreement was made at Wake Island to a British proposal that UN forces stop 40 miles south of the international boundary is a pure fabrication.

"There was no mention made of such a proposal at Wake Island. As a matter of fact, when the Wake conference took place, our troops were barely across the 38th Parallel and there was no proscription whatsoever upon the command, other than it should not violate the international border.

"Apart from this, it would be naive indeed to believe such an imaginary line would have influenced in the slightest degree the Chinese Communists in their monumental decisions.

"The use of non-use of the atom bomb is not a question which falls within the scope of my authority unless expressly delegates by the President."

Firemen Called To Douse Fuel

Circleville firemen were routed at about 4:50 a. m. Wednesday to wash gasoline from South Court street at the Crites filling station.

Station attendants said gasoline was being pumped from the bulk plant into the station tanks and overflowed onto the street.

City Government Gets More Taxes Than It Sought

Circleville corporation emerged from Pickaway County budget hearings Wednesday morning with almost $2,000 more than it asked for in its 1951 budget for the general fund.

The budget commission set the total 1951 tax levy for Circleville, including the school district, at 23 mills. Last year's rate was 20.10 mills.

The new rate means that property owners will be required to pay $23 tax on each $1,000 of property valuation.

The valuation for Circleville is $13,293,000, according to Fred Tipton, county auditor and member of the budget commission. For Circleville school district the valuation is $14,839,000. The school district includes territory outside the city.

GEORGE CRITES, chairman of city council finance committee, said $50,000 had been requested in the 1951 budget. The millage approved by the budget commission gives the city $51,844.

This is approximately $6,300 more than the city received in 1950.

"But it still isn't enough," Crites declared. "At the end of 1951 we will be from $4,000 to $5,000 short due to the increased cost of operation."

The budget commission allotted 9.80 mills of the 23-mill total to Circleville school district for general operating expenses next year. This amounts to $145,426.

Tipton said that the schools will get all that is due them outside the ten-mill limitation. Last year, the budget commission lopped off one mill when the school budget did not show need for the extra mill.

For bonds the school received a 4.20 slice of the total levy, amounting to $62,325.03. Of this $23,743.03 is for its old bond issue and $38,582 for the new bond issue.

In addition to the $51,844 allotted to the city for its general fund, the policemen and firemen's pension funds were also given .20 mill or $2,658 each.

* * *

FOR CITY BONDS .85 mill or $11,299.38 was approved.

Of the total 23-mill levy set for Circleville in 1951, distribution is as follows:

To the state, .20 mill; county, 3.40 mills; Circleville Township general fund, .05 mill; township road fund, .20 mill; school general operating fund, 9.80 mills; school bond fund, 4.20 mills; Circleville general fund, 4.30 mills; Circleville bond fund, .85 mill.

Other members of the budget commission are County Treasurer Robert Colville and County Prosecutor Guy Cline.

some elements of the U. S. First Marine Division succeeded Wednesday in smashing through gauntlets of Chinese crossfire over a seven-mile highway stretch south to Kotori.

At Kotori, these Leathernecks joined with other Marines and U. S. Army Seventh Division soldiers in a further battle to burst through enemy roadblocks barring their 43-mile escape road to Hamhung, Hungnam and the sea.

In this fighting, heroic retreat the American units were leapfrogging each other, taking turns at rearguard actions against the Chinese hordes trying to spring new traps along the way.

Swarms of American Airforce, Navy and Marine Corps planes kept up a continual battering of the Chinese Reds, killing several thousand, as they flew to the aid of the heavily outnumbered U. S. ground forces.

ALSO BELIEVED striving to fight their way south to Hungnam were troops of the U. S. Seventh Division's 17th Regiment which reached the Manchurian Yalu river border at Hyesanjin, north of the Changjin power resevoir.

These troops were ordered six days ago to retreat from their border position and make their way back to the Hamhung-Hungnam area, but there had been no recent word of their whereabouts.

Also uncertain was the fate of two South Korean divisions of the 10th Corps, but it was believed some of their troops were struggling south toward Hungnam or might be picked up by small boats to be taken south.

These were the South Korean Third and Capitol Divisions. The latter had advanced farther north than any other UN units, having sent spearheads up the far northeast coast to within 40 miles of the Korean-Soviet Siberian border.

New Driving License Being Misunderstood

Pickaway County motorists were warned Wednesday that many persons have the wrong impression about the new three-year drivers' licenses.

Joe Brink, deputy registrar of motor vehicles here, said many persons believe they have a 30-day grace period after their birthdays before they need licenses.

"Actually," said Brink," the license expires on the person's birthdate and if he drives after that he can be arrested."

The registrar said that a person is permitted to buy new license during a period 30 days before his birthday, but that the old license is no good after the birthday.

"What a lot of the people are thinking about is the 90-day period after the license expires, when they may receive a new license without taking another drivers' test," he said.

SULFA GOING ON SHELF?

Medicine Believed Near New Drug Discoveries

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—Medicine is on the threshhold of new "wonder drug" discoveries which undoubtedly will cure quickly diseases which thus far have escaped penicillin and the other drugs developed in recent years.

This is the conclusion of Dr. Monroe J. Romansky, a consultant at the Army Medical Center in Washington. An associate professor of medicine at George Washington university, Romansky has contributed notably to the marked progress made in the field of antibiotics.

These are the new "wonder drugs" which have shoved the old sulfa drugs almost out of competition. Penicillin was the first. Then came streptomycin. Since World War II these new ones have been developed chloromycetin, aureomycin and terramycin.

Romansky gave his views on antibiotics at the Army Medical Center antibiotics laboratory, where he and several associates are busily working on improved techniques for the use of these drugs.

He pointed out that, as more antibiotics are developed, the problem of employing them to the maximum advantage increases.

THUS FAR, no antibiotics have been discovered which are effective against any except the larger viruses, such as parrot fever and a venereal disease known as tropical bubo. But Romansky said new ones probably will be developed which will knock out some of the filterable viruses.

"The field has just been scratched," he declared. "There probably will be new antibiotics which will do some of the things we cannot do now. New ones likely will be found which will replace streptomycin in the treatment of tuberculosis. Some of them may replace antibiotics now in use for other purposes."

At present, Romansky and his assistants are at work on combinations of the new drugs to combat a tendency of some disease germs to develop resistance against penicillin and streptomycin when used alone.

This is what actually takes place when a patient thinks he is becoming "immune" to effective treatment with one of these drugs. Romansky explained that instead of immunity by the individual, the bug develops a partial immunity to the drug.

He said that combinations of antibiotics offer promise of combating this tendency. For example, he added, penicillin and aureomycin show better results in some cases than penicillin used alone. Moreover, smaller doses may suffice when combinations are used.

Up to now, streptomycin is the only wonder drug which has proved effective against tuberculosis. But the germ has shown an ability to develop resistance against the drug. This is one of the major problems now encountered in the treatment of tuberculosis.

Each of the three newer antibiotics — chloromycetin, aureomycin and terramycin — has proved effective in the treatment of the so-called rickettsial diseases.

THESE INCLUDE the three forms of typhus and rocky mountain spotted fever.

The conquest of these diseases is a great triumph for medicine, since they include some of the worst scourges mankind has known.

In using chloromycetin for scrub typhus, Army research doctors discovered accidentally that it would also knock out typhoid fever in a few days. Thus another dreaded disease is taking the count under the assault of antibiotics.

Farm Prices Here Up 12 Pct. From '49 Par

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6 — The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service said today that farm prices in Ohio were 12 percent higher in mid-November of this year than during the same period a year ago.

Decline in the price of hogs, corn, potatoes and apples since Oct. 15 were more than offset by other farm produce prices.

Potatoes and chickens were the only items which were not selling higher this year than last. Soybeans jumped 50 cents during the month to stand at $2.55 and moderate increases were reported in wheat, oats, rye and barley. Corn declined three cents to $1.43 per bushel.

During the last month, meat animal rices dropped two percent. Hogs cropped $1.30 per hundredweight, but other classes were higher. The overall price range of meat animals was 17 percent hiigher this year over last year.

Dairy produce prices were three percent higher in mid-November than mid-October and four percent above 1949. Eggs continued their advance to 49.5 cents per dozen. Chickens increased over mid-October, but still were below last year's level. Wool continued on the upgrade to the highest price on record—63 cents a pound.

SULFA GOING ON SHELF?

Medicine Believed Near New Drug Discoveries

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—Medicine is on the threshhold of new "wonder drug" discoveries which undoubtedly will cure quickly diseases which thus far have escaped penicillin and the other drugs developed in recent years.

This is the conclusion of Dr. Monroe J. Romansky, a consultant at the Army Medical Center in Washington. An associate professor of medicine at George Washington university, Romansky has contributed notably to the marked progress made in the field of antibiotics.

These are the new "wonder drugs" which have shoved the old sulfa drugs almost out of competition. Penicillin was the first. Then came streptomycin. Since World War II these new ones have been developed chloromycetin, aureomycin and terramycin.

Romansky gave his views on antibiotics at the Army Medical Center antibiotics laboratory, where he and several associates are busily working on improved techniques for the use of these drugs.

He pointed out that, as more antibiotics are developed, the problem of employing them to the maximum advantage increases.

THUS FAR, no antibiotics have been discovered which are effective against any except the larger viruses, such as parrot fever and a venereal disease known as tropical bubo. But Romansky said new ones probably will be developed which will knock out some of the filterable viruses.

"The field has just been scratched," he declared. "There probably will be new antibiotics which will do some of the things we cannot do now. New ones likely will be found which will replace streptomycin in the treatment of tuberculosis. Some of them may replace antibiotics now in use for other purposes."

At present, Romansky and his assistants are at work on combinations of the new drugs to combat a tendency of some disease germs to develop resistance against penicillin and streptomycin when used alone.

This is what actually takes place when a patient thinks he is becoming "immune" to effective treatment with one of these drugs. Romansky explained that instead of immunity by the individual, the bug develops a partial immunity to the drug.

He said that combinations of antibiotics offer promise of combating this tendency. For example, he added, penicillin and aureomycin show better results in some cases than penicillin used alone. Moreover, smaller doses may suffice when combinations are used.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Director

A movement to "draft" Pope Pius XII as mediator in the Far Eastern conflict and to serve as some sort of bridge between East and West is being reported from Rome.

Suggestion by high Vatican officials that an approach from one of the interested powers would be welcomed by the pontiff because of his frequently-voiced appeals for peace aroused considerable interest.

Admittedly, there are difficulties at the outset.

The Vatican has no official diplomatic ties with the United States or China, and of course not the slightest contact with Soviet Russia.

Myron C. Taylor served for many years as the late President Roosevelt's personal envoy to the Vatican and in that assignment played a major part in numerous "off the record" diplomatic negotiations.

But he has retired and President Truman has not named a successor.

IN ADDITION to this lack of diplomatic contacts there is the fact that the Vatican is not represented at the United Nations. It has been asked a number of times whether this might not be feasible and there seems to be little precedent for such church participation in temporal affairs during recent times.

The Vatican is a sovereign state and has been since the Lateran Treaty was signed—a pact between the Holy See and the Italian government which ended "imprisonment" of the popes dating back more than 60 years.

But its sovereignty applies, strictly speaking, only to Italian territory and not to the rest of the world. In other words, control by Italian police and military and civilian authorities over the Vatican confines ended when the treaty was signed.

Many countries which are members of the United Nations maintain ambassadors at the Vatican, and in turn the Holy See has papal envoys or nuncios in numerous capitals.

It has been said that as a result of these contacts, the Vatican is perhaps better informed than any individual capital on the progress of world affairs, and certainly has been in the forefront in warning of Communist aggression and suppression.

It is true also that on numerous occasions in the past popes have been instrumental in solving dangerous crises, particularly in Latin America where Catholicism is the predominant faith and loyalty to the church an ingrained characteristic of the people.

There is also the fact that Pope Benedict XV made many notable efforts to restore peace in World War I, while the restraining hand that Pius XII placed upon both Mussolini and Hitler is a matter of record.

POPE PIUS had less trouble with Mussolini's blackshirts, whose atheism was largely synthetic, than he did with Hitler's young bullies who had no hesitation in smashing the stained-glass windows of cathedrals and threatening bodily harm to prelates.

They never went as far as Russia and the satellite nations, where a concerted attempt to wipe out the Catholic hierarchy is more than evident.

But even behind the Iron Curtaii the spiritual authority of the church is believed to have curbed many excesses, especially in Czechoslovakia and Poland despite the so-alled "treason trials" which have resulted in spurious confessions and long terms of imprisonment.

Whether any of the major powers now engaged in a giant test of strength will elect to give the Vatican a chance at mediation is problematical.

Roman Catholicism is far from strong in England and the religious fervor of the Latin Americas finds no comparison in the United States.

Yet the Vatican is keenly aware of a widespread sentiment everywhere that a new world war must be avoided and quite obviously is prepared to furnish its good offices if a formal request comes from proper quarters for their invocation.

Vote Machine Cost Studied

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6—Franklin County Auditor Fred C. Dunn is expected to decide this week whether the county can afford to install voting machines.

The county commissioners yesterday asked the auditor to give his opinion on the financial status of the proposed program. Machines cost $1,350 each. The board proposes to rent 30 trial machines for $150 each year with an option to buy them later.

New Mechanical Heart Is Said Ready For Use

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6—A new "mechanical heart" which promises to make medical history is available today for emergency use on a "clinically dead" patient undergoing surgery.

The machine was unveiled in Cleveland by Dr. Charles P. Bailey, noted heart and chest surgeon at Hahnemann Medical college, Philadelphia.

Dr. Bailey, who spoke at a meeting of the Ohio chapter, American College of Chest Physicians, said the machine has been used successfully on 15 dogs in the seven-year process of development.

If the machine performs as expected in its first application to a human patient, it is expected to open a new era in chest and lung surgery and in the treatment of medical conditions, such as asthma, pneumonia and heart disease.

Dr. Bailey said a dog was kept alive for 71 minutes while its heart and lungs were not functioning in a recent test of the machine.

The machine takes the dark, waste-laden blood from the veins, refreshes it with oxygen, then pumps it back into the arteries.

When it is used on a human, it will be a race against time to get circulation going again before irreparable damage is done to the brain and other tissues, Dr. Bailey said.

Use of the machine will permit surgeons to make bloodless heart operations and the heart will not be required to do its work.

Cattle, Hogs Slaughter Is Up In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6—Slaughter of cattle and hogs in Ohio for October exceeded both the number slaughtered in September of this year and October of last year, according to the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service.

October calf slaughter exceeded that of September but just equaled last year's October slaughter. Sheep and lamb slaughter equaled the number slaughtered in the preceding month of September but fell below a year ago.

A total of 83,000 cattle averaging 930 pounds each were slaughtered in October in Ohio, 3000 more than in September, and 6000 above the October estimate of 1949. Average weight per head was 911 pounds in October of last year. Total cattle slaughter for the period January to October inclusive of 745,000 just equaled the number slaughtered in the corresponding period of 1949.

Calf slaughter of 28,000 compares with 26,000 in September and with 28,000 in October of last year.

Hog slaughter for October of 335,000 head is about 13 percent larger than the 296,000 slaughtered in September, and 10 percent greater than the 304,000 in October last year. The average weight of hogs slaughtered in October was 226 pounds, seven pounds heavier than in the previous month and five pounds over the average weight of a year ago. For the ten months January to October inclusive the comparative estimates are 2,996,000 for 1950 and 2,621,000 in 1949.

Sheep slaughter of 19,000 in October equaled the September number but fell below a year ago by 4000 head.

Teen Tips

With holiday party-time ahead, here's a quick check on date manners. How do yours rate?

It's correct for a boy with a date to arrive at the girl's home on time. If he's unavoidably delayed, a telephone call to let her know is courteous.

A girl with a date plans her time so she'll be ready when her escort arrives. Greet him at the door and invite him in while you get your coat, etc. Don't forget to introduce him to some members of your family—at least one of your parents—before you leave the house.

A girl who has to be home at a certain time (everybody does!) should tell her escort during the date, so they can plan to start homeward in ample time to keep her "deadline." Getting home on time is one good way to be sure that you'll be allowed to have more dates—and to prove that you're grown-up enough to manage your time in an adult way. There's no reason to feel embarrassed about telling your escort that your parents expect you home at a certain "zero hour." Most of us have a curfew of some kind all our lives, so let's face it! Boys will have more respect for you if you do, and will like you just as much.

Don't forget that guests have an invitation at parties just as much as hostesses do. If you accept an invitation to a party, it's up to you to join the fun, follow the hostess' suggestions and mingle with others. Boys who gather in a group to talk football and a girl who sees a friend and makes no attempt to meet or mingle with others are impolite.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Director

A movement to "draft" Pope Pius XII as mediator in the Far Eastern conflict and to serve as some sort of bridge between East and West is being reported from Rome.

Suggestion by high Vatican officials that an approach from one of the interested powers would be welcomed by the pontiff because of his frequently-voiced appeals for peace aroused considerable interest.

Admittedly, there are difficulties at the outset.

The Vatican has no official diplomatic ties with the United States or China, and of course not the slightest contact with Soviet Russia.

Myron C. Taylor served for many years as the late President Roosevelt's personal envoy to the Vatican and in that assignment played a major part in numerous "off the record" diplomatic negotiations.

But he has retired and President Truman has not named a successor.

IN ADDITION to this lack of diplomatic contacts there is the fact that the Vatican is not represented at the United Nations. It has been asked a number of times whether this might not be feasible and there seems to be little precedent for such church participation in temporal affairs during recent times.

The Vatican is a sovereign state and has been since the Lateran Treaty was signed—a pact between the Holy See and the Italian government which ended "imprisonment" of the popes dating back more than 60 years.

But its sovereignty applies, strictly speaking, only to Italian territory and not to the rest of the world. In other words, control by Italian police and military and civilian authorities over the Vatican confines ended when the treaty was signed.

Many countries which are members of the United Nations maintain ambassadors at the Vatican, and in turn the Holy See has papal envoys or nuncios in numerous capitals.

It has been said that as a result of these contacts, the Vatican is perhaps better informed than any individual capital on the progress of world affairs, and certainly has been in the forefront in warning of Communist aggression and suppression.

It is true also that on numerous occasions in the past popes have been instrumental in solving dangerous crises, particularly in Latin America where Catholicism is the predominant faith and loyalty to the church an ingrained characteristic of the people.

There is also the fact that Pope Benedict XV made many notable efforts to restore peace in World War I, while the restraining hand that Pius XII placed upon both Mussolini and Hitler is a matter of record.

POPE PIUS had less trouble with Mussolini's blackshirts, whose atheism was largely synthetic, than he did with Hitler's young bullies who had no hesitation in smashing the stained-glass windows of cathedrals and threatening bodily harm to prelates.

They never went as far as Russia and the satellite nations, where a concerted attempt to wipe out the Catholic hierarchy is more than evident.

But even behind the Iron Curtaii the spiritual authority of the church is believed to have curbed many excesses, especially in Czechoslovakia and Poland despite the so-alled "treason trials" which have resulted in spurious confessions and long terms of imprisonment.

Whether any of the major powers now engaged in a giant test of strength will elect to give the Vatican a chance at mediation is problematical.

Roman Catholicism is far from strong in England and the religious fervor of the Latin Americas finds no comparison in the United States.

Yet the Vatican is keenly aware of a widespread sentiment everywhere that a new world war must be avoided and quite obviously is prepared to furnish its good offices if a formal request comes from proper quarters for their invocation.

Vote Machine Cost Studied

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6—Franklin County Auditor Fred C. Dunn is expected to decide this week whether the county can afford to install voting machines.

The county commissioners yesterday asked the auditor to give his opinion on the financial status of the proposed program. Machines cost $1,350 each. The board proposes to rent 30 trial machines for $150 each year with an option to buy them later.

New Mechanical Heart Is Said Ready For Use

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6—A new "mechanical heart" which promises to make medical history is available today for emergency use on a "clinically dead" patient undergoing surgery.

The machine was unveiled in Cleveland by Dr. Charles P. Bailey, noted heart and chest surgeon at Hahnemann Medical college, Philadelphia.

Dr. Bailey, who spoke at a meeting of the Ohio chapter, American College of Chest Physicians, said the machine has been used successfully on 15 dogs in the seven-year process of development.

If the machine performs as expected in its first application to a human patient, it is expected to open a new era in chest and lung surgery and in the treatment of medical conditions, such as asthma, pneumonia and heart disease.

Dr. Bailey said a dog was kept alive for 71 minutes while its heart and lungs were not functioning in a recent test of the machine.

The machine takes the dark, waste-laden blood from the veins, refreshes it with oxygen, then pumps it back into the arteries.

When it is used on a human, it will be a race against time to get circulation going again before irreparable damage is done to the brain and other tissues, Dr. Bailey said.

Use of the machine will permit surgeons to make bloodless heart operations and the heart will not be required to do its work.

Social Security For Employes In Home Detailed

Do you have a valet, a footman, a groom? How about a maid, laundress, housekeeper? Or a handyman, practical nurse or gardener?

If any of these are in your employ, do you pay $50 or more for 24 days work in your home during a three-month period?

If so, starting Jan. 1, the new federal Social Security law requires you to make a one and one-half percent salary deduction and send it with an equal contribution of your own to the Collector of Internal Revenue.

All this is explained in a booklet put out by the Federal Social Security Administration and available in Circleville postoffice.

THE BOOKLET explains that people who do household work on a farm are protected under a different provision of the new federal Social Security law.

Application of the new law to household workers depends on how often they work and the amount they are paid. In general the law applies only to regularly employed household workers and not to people who work only now and then.

The three-month periods referred to in the booklet are the four calendar quarters.

If more than one person is employed as a household worker, each person is considered separately.

Room and board are not counted as wages, but carfare is if paid in cash.

The last page of the booklet is a postcard which may be filled out by employers and mailed to the Collector of Internal Revenue. Persons sending in the card will receive information on how to make out the quarterly reports.

Toledo Gas Strike Fades

TOLEDO, Dec. 6—The threat of a gas strike in the Toledo area is over today.

The strike, which would have affected more than 93,000 gas users in the area, was averted last night with the ratification of a new agreement by officials of the CIO-Utility Workers Union.

The new contract provides for a 12½-cent hourly wage increase and other non-economic improvements.

U.S. Soybean Crop Pacing World

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 — The U. S.'s record-breaking 281 million-bushel soybean crop this year is pacing world soybean output to an all-time high.

The Agriculture Department says world production of soybeans is estimated at 626 million bushels. That's an increase of 63 million bushels above the previous high set in 1948.

The U. S. production outstrips the near-200 million bushels estimated for China this year. But when Chinese output is lumped together with that of Manchuria, U. S. production is over-shadowed. Total Chinese-Manchurian output is estimated at more than 300 million bushels.

It'll Cost More To Pay Piper

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 — It will take more to pay the piper for his tune in the Chicago area beginning Jan. 2.

The executive board of Local 10 of the AFL-Chicago Federation of Musicians decided to increase rates from $16 to $19 for Class A musicians for three hours work in hotel dining rooms and from $14 to $17 for three hours playing at major ballrooms.

Musicians performing for Class B events—auto and horse races, public park festivals, street carnivals and weddings—will get $15 each for 3½ hours work instead of $13 as now.

THE STORY OF WHEAT

PERHAPS a bit overdue, the first "death" of the 1951 Kansas wheat crop has reached the press. A. W. Erickson, professional crop reporter of Minneapolis, has just made an inspection, and says the wheat is suffering from lack of moisture, and that green bugs are doing extensive damage.

His claims were immediately countered by reports from various county agents in Western Kansas, who are always quick to deny there is anything amiss. They say that while moisture is needed the situation is not nearly as bad as Erickson has reported.

An unusually dry Fall season has been harmful to the wheat in the Southwest. Continued dry and freezing weather can bring great permanent damage, making necessary Spring planting of row crops. Grain men say, however, there is nothing wrong with the wheat crop that an inch of rain or a good snow will not cure.

Because of its importance as the leading food crop, wheat will be much in the news from now on. It will be killed many times, brought to life by favorable weather conditions, and the complete story will not be told until harvest time, when the combines go forth to bring in the official returns.

EX-CAVE DWELLER

A SOUTH DAKOTA man, who has lived in a cave for 42 years, has emerged from his subterranean abode on the prairie. To some, this news will seem strange. They will be unable to understand why anyone would renounce life in a cave at a time like this.

The explanation is simple. The man became too feeble to continue his underground abode out where the storms howl in Winter. This is the only reason that could be given for his action which would seem logical.

There is no prejudice equalling that of the man who knows nothing about the subject.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Shortly after Mr. Truman became President of the United States, he went to the Potsdam conference where the United States was trimmed by the superior diplomacy of Joe Stalin. The country sympathized with Harry Truman because it was generally felt that he had had no preparation for such great affairs.

Mr. Truman's secretary of state was James Byrnes, who had never devoted himself to such matters before, he having been a United States senator and a justice of the Supreme Court, but neither an historian nor a specialist in international relations. What Truman and Byrnes tried to do was to salvage for the United States the most they could out of the commitments of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins, some of which were not even recorded in the usual way.

In due course, Mr. Truman got rid of Byrnes and appointed George Marshall as his secretary of state, a position in which Marshall was really subordinated to Dean Acheson, a State Department specialist. In time, Acheson succeeded Marshall and worked out the policy of containment.

The policy of containment was always unrealistic. What it amounted to was that Soviet Russia was to stay put. Our stipulations were that Russia was not to move into Iran, Greece, Turkey or Germany. That, of course, was not staying put. It left an enormous area of the earth's surface into which Russia could expand. And from the American standpoint, the areas left open were greater and more important than those closed to Russia.

It was a display of geographic and historic ignorance and it indicated a total lack of understanding of the Marxist movement throughout the world alone. Little help was imperialistic aims of Russia.

One of the accompaniments of the containment policy was the final abandonment of Chiang Kai-shek and Nationalist China. Many factors entered into this decision, but for purposes of this discussion we may limit ourselves to one, namely, that the United States did not possess the economic and military strength to oppose Russia throughout the world alone. Little help was then expected from other countries and less has actually been received than was expected.

The choice of Europe first from which derived, in part, the abandonment of China has now been proved, by the course of events, to have been an error. Acheson sought to cover up the error, but such a coverup could not have been in the national interest. It could only preserve his group in power.

He was given a way out by the Wedemeyer reports on China and Korea. The China report was suppressed for two years; the Korean report even to this day. Acheson confused the situation by a false propaganda concerning the nature and character of Chinese Communists—a propaganda which would have been as false in 1920 as it was in 1948 and 1949. In a word, it was a betrayal of American interests. It was the sacrifice of millions of human beings to the advantage of a few in the White House and the State Department.

This may seem to be too harsh a judgment; yet none other is possible in the circumstances. The course of events permits no other conclusions, for knowledge of the

Six Disorders That Cause A Severe Abdominal Pain

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

CONFRONTED with an acutely ill patient suffering severe abdominal pain, the doctor must consider six possibilities in making his diagnosis — appendicitis, gallbladder infection, ruptured gastric ulcer, acute inflammation of the pancreas, kidney stone colic, and coronary artery disease.

These are the outstanding conditions which cause intense pain in the abdomen and, unfortunately, their symptoms are more or less similar so that one disorder is often mistaken for another. For the experienced doctor, however, there are ways of telling them apart. The age and sex of the patient, for instance, will often be factors, since certain of these ailments have a definite predilection for one sex and one age group. The time of onset of fever and the exact site of the pain will also aid the doctor in distinguishing one type of illness from the other.

Generalized Pain

In appendicitis, for instance, the pain is at first generalized but, within 24 hours, it becomes limited to the lower, right side of the abdomen. Loss of appetite, sickness at the stomach, and vomiting may also be present. Though not usually present at first, fever occurs as the condition progresses. As a general rule, there is an increase in the number of white cells in the blood.

Acute gallbladder infection most often occurs in overweight women past 40. These patients often are unable to eat fried or fatty foods, raw apples, cucumbers, or cabbage. The pain usually comes on in attacks, and is located in the right, upper part of the abdomen. The pain may pass into the back and up into the right shoulder. Fever is often present.

Pulse Rate

In ruptured ulcer, there is increased pulse rate and rapid breathing, together with fever. Since the rupture of an ulcer allows the contents of the bowel to get into the abdomen, peritonitis or inflammation of the lining membrane of the bowel cavity develops.

Acute pancreatitis usually comes on suddenly, following the eating of a heavy meal. There is severe and sudden pain in the abdomen, which passes downward into the legs. When the patient sits up the pain is relieved. When he lies down, it is worse. Vomiting is almost always present. There is some tenderness in the upper part of the abdomen, and the patient usually is in shock with cold and clammy skin, rapid pulse rate, and sub-normal temperature.

Kidney stone colic also produces severe pain. It starts in the lower area of the back and radiates downward into the legs. Vomiting is frequently present, and there is frequent emptying of the bladder.

Coronary Arteries

In coronary artery disease with blocking of the coronary arteries, the pain starts in the chest, in most cases. The attacks come on suddenly with severe pain, which passes on into the left arm. However, it often passes into the abdomen. There is no tenderness in the abdomen, but the abdomen may be distended or swollen.

Whenever an acute attack of pain in the abdomen occurs, there is need for an immediate and careful study by the physician so that the cause may be found and proper treatment carried out at once.

Try, Stop Me

A man who had been a book salesman for twenty years decided there was more money in selling vacuum cleaners, and secured the local agency for a well-known brand. His very first prospect was a skeptical housewife who asked, "Are you sure that contraption will gather up every single bit of dirt?" "Lady," said the salesman earnestly, "I ran this cleaner lightly over a copy of Lady Chatterley's Lover yesterday, and when I was finished, it was Louisa Alcott's Little Women!"

John O'Connell reports that Author Eric Hodgins finds writing a monumental chore. When he finished "Blanding's Way," for instance, his almost-new typewriter was in need of extensive repairs. The man who had sold him the machine said, "We get back twenty-year-old typewriters that aren't half as beat up as this." Hodgins reported later, "I had to ask him to repeat that statement. The way I feel, I was sure he had said eighty-year-old authors."

LOOK OUT for LIZA

CHAPTER FORTY

"WELL," said Abby, after Michael left, "really, Liza . . ."

Liza said apologetically, "Well, after all, you are his relatives and I am, too—by marriage. To whom else would he appeal?"

"Anything less like an appeal I have never heard," cried Virginia. "Honestly, Liza, don't you think you are letting your—your interest in Michael carry you too far?"

Abby said, "I am appalled at you, Liza. Only a few minutes ago I was admiring, if not wholly comprehending, your astuteness in money matters. And why, pray, should Michael require funds at this time?"

"He hasn't been working," said Liza earnestly, "that is, not at paid work. He needs to be tided over. Of course, when the book is accepted he will get an advance and repay me. Not that I want to be repaid," she said hastily, reflecting that Michael was apt to repay her for a number of things, all with interest.

"Well, it's your money," Abby said dourly.

"But this," remarked Virginia, "'could be habit-forming.' She paused, struck with a horrible thought. "And something tells me that this isn't the first time."

"Of course it is," denied Liza, far too quickly.

Virginia inquired, "What happened to the money Father left him?"

"It wasn't much, Virginia, and he has to live."

Abby rose. She felt a slight headache approaching. She said majestically, "I don't see why," and went to her room.

"Now she's angry," said Liza sadly.

"She's just concerned about you. It isn't that, darling. You know she wouldn't care what you did with your money as long as it made you happy."

"But helping Michael does make me happy." Liza rose. "I think I'd better go talk with her," she said stoutly.

She found Abby preparing to lie down. No, she didn't require an aspirin. It was just the trip, from which she had not recovered; and the heat, also the hurry and confusion.

"Here," said Liza, "I'll draw the shades." She fussed with pillows and things and Abby said, "I'm all right. I just want a little nap."

"Michael upset you. I'm so sorry."

"You upset me. I can't bear to see you taken in by that good-for-nothing boy." Abby sat up, her headache forgotten. "Mind you, I'm trying to be fair. He is amusing and probably different from anyone you have ever known. You are lonely, most of the people you know were George's friends and George's age. It's natural enough that you should be attracted by Michael. But what alarms me is, how seriously are you attracted?"

Liza said after a moment, "Honestly, I don't know, Abby. He's fun to be with and we have a lot in common."

"That's nonsense."

"Maybe." She put her hand on the older womans. "Please don't scold. I'm having such a good time."

"I'm not scolding, I'm warning you." Abby thought, I have no influence with her, none whatever. And Virginia hasnt. I wonder if there's anybody? She said aloud, "I think I'll try to see Robert tomorrow."

"We're going to see him Friday night."

"Professionally, I mean. Ive been having these headaches for some time," lied Abby. "It's not my eyes, I had those tested in Boston, shortly after you left. I've been putting off seeing Dr. Samlin. He's so old-fashioned. And that new young doctor, Edwards, I can't abide him. He thinks everything from an upset stomach to a broken leg is caused by the fact that your parents rejected you as a child or you had straight hair and your sister's was curly!"

Liza said, with a straight face, "I'll make an appointment for you now, Abby. If his nurse is still in the office. If not, first thing in the morning."

At ten o'clock the following morning Abby entered Dr. Fleming's office, was received by a nurse, and taken through the waiting room, occupied by several women, tapping their expensively shod feet, glancing at magazines and glaring at Abby. At his door, Dr. Fleming came to meet her, his face bright with welcome. "Come in, come in," he said, taking her hand. "How good to see you."

His nurse shut the door, and Abby said, "How are you, Robert? You are looking well."

"I may say the same of you. Sit down. Cigaret? No, of course not." He leaned back in his chair and twinkled at her. "If you are ill, it is not discernible to the naked eye."

"I am not ill," Abby replied testily. "I came on a personal matter."

"I'll send you a bill," he warned, "not that my office is crowded at this season. Many of my patients have taken their symptoms to seashore or mountain or ranch. I'll be getting away myself next month."

"I won't take up much of your time and I won't pay your bill either," said Abby. "I came about Liza."

"Is anything wrong with her?" inquired Fleming, poker-faced. "I can't believe that. She's a healthy young woman. Thin of course, but her bones are small—"

"Bother her bones. I'm worried about her and Michael."

"Why?"

"Don't be obtuse. In the brief time I've been here I've seen enough to alarm me. I came here because of Michael, I may add, at great inconvenience."

"Virginia got in touch with you?"

"She telephoned."

"How did she explain that to Liza?"

"Liza happened to be out. Later Virginia told her that I had phoned —I knew she was to be in New York. It was simple to say I called to ask her to visit me before she returned to Chicago."

"Why couldn't Virginia have telephoned you? It would have been natural."

"She thought Liza would suspect something."

"Which she will when she looks at her telephone bill next month."

"Nonsense, Liza often telephones me. One more call won't be noticed."

"I'm not so sure. But go on."

"I believe she's in love with him," Abby said. "Robert, we have to stop it before its too late."

"What have you against him, Abby?"

"Everything. To sum it up, he is certainly not the man for her."

He said gently, "Liza must be the judge of that. She had little or nothing to say about her marriage. Fortunately it turned out to be extremely happy, one in a thousand. This time—if you are suggesting that she might marry Michael, do permit her to choose for herself."

"But she's a child."

"Hardly that."

"She needs looking after—"

"Of course, my dear, but couldn't Michael qualify?"

"Certainly not. He is irresponsible, facetious—" She broke off. "You know him," she said.

"I do, and am fond of him. He is not all on the surface. Neither you nor Virginia nor I can select Liza's husband. Remember, you disapproved of her marriage to George."

"That was different. And once I knew her and saw her devotion to him—"

"If she marries Michael—and mind you I don't say it's in the cards—she will be equally devoted." He regarded her gravely. "They are young and, I think, will complement each other."

"Bosh."

"You're a hard woman," he said, laughing. "Tell me, why would it be so unsuitable aside from the fact Michael is in your opinion irresponsible?"

"I don't like his attitude toward her."

"What is his attitude?"

"He takes her for granted. He orders her around. Only yesterday she mentioned she wished to cut her hair and he said, 'I won't have it,' and she said, 'Very well, Michael,' meek as Moses."

"Is that all?"

"No." But she could not bring herself to tell him about the check. She would not humiliate her sister-in-law to him.

Fleming said, "My diagnosis is that you are unduly concerned; my prescription, let things alone. You'll succeed only in amusing Michael and antagonizing Liza."

She said in despair, "Robert, I love her."

"Don't we all?"

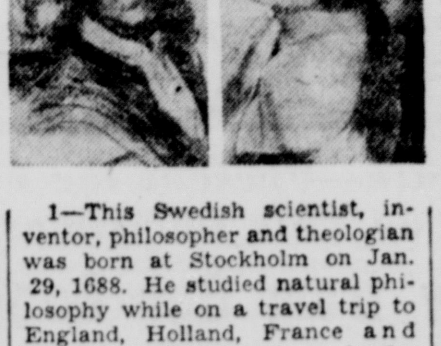
FOLKS OF FAME—GUESS THE NAME



1—This Swedish scientist, inventor, philosopher and theologian was born at Stockholm on Jan. 29, 1688. He studied natural philosophy while on a travel trip to England, Holland, France and Germany. Returning home he devoted himself to natural science and engineering, and published many scientific periodicals. In 1716 he was made assessor-extraordinary on the Swedish board of mines. He invented machines for the transport of boats overland, for which he was given a patent of nobility. He was many years ahead of his time in his scientific theories of geology, astronomy, and physiology. After 1734, he applied himself to discovering the nature of soul and spirit. He claimed to see extraordinary visions and to hear mysterious conversations, to have seen heaven and hell and to have conversed with angels and spirits. In 1747 he resigned his government post and devoted himself to religion. The religious society named for him and promulgating his doctrines is now widely spread. He died in London, England, March 29, 1772. What was his name?

2—A favorite star of motion pictures not so long ago, she was born in Hull, England, March 4, 1905, and received her dramatic training at London's dramatic school. She appeared in the Hippodrome chorus in London in Joybelle, later heading the famous Chicken number in that creation. The Face at the Window, her first film, was also made in London. Later she came to New York and joined the Ziegfeld Follies. She played leads with John Barrymore in The Lotus Eater, and Bits of Life. She played opposite Richard Barthelmess and Milton Sills, and in the Torchy comedies. Subway Sadie, Just Another Blonde, The Crystal Cup, Lady Be Good, The Barker, The Whip, Great Divide, The Office Wife, Man Trouble, etc., were just a few of the pictures in which she appeared. The later ones were Curtain at Eight, Cheaters and Bulldog Drummond at Bay. Who was she?

ONE MAN'S OPINION

There is much disturbing news and the information hot from Hawaii that Esther Williams has taken to eating raw fish is not quite the staggering blow it might have been in happier times.

With all the confusion existing in the world today it is quite possible that one could hurry past Miss Williams without (1) noticing that it was Miss Williams and-or (2) that she was gnawing on a fish.

A few years back the Gallup people would have been backing citizens into doorways to ask: (1) Do you believe that raw fish does anything for you? (2) Do you believe that raw fish does anything for Esther Williams? (3) Undecided?

Today even the information that there is, has been or will be a Bankhead-Davis or Davis-Bankhead feud appears to be running second in the news to reports of that larger feud which seems destined to involve more persons.

It's nice to have known a world though in which Hollywood feuds seemed terribly important at the time and we can't wait to get back to those delightful days.

Meanwhile who's feeding the raw meet to Mao? That's what we want to know.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Celeste Holm

NEW YORK—I often have wondered how far a man can go in tolerating an inconvenient condition, just so long as it is whimsical. In other words, how long can he listen to the noise and furore of a neighbors' quarrel just because their dialogue sounds like Burns and Allen. Or similar inconveniences which in certain lights appear entertaining.

I know now. Not very far.

The fey adventures of the Long Island railroad always have intrigued me, and one day I hope to write a book about them—the train that got lost, the countless trains that had to stop while the engineer went back for his dropped shovel, the thousands and thousands of trains that were late, the terrible-tempered Mr. Bangs passengers, and so on.

"We have," I used to tell out-of-towners, chuckling and slapping my knee like Mr. Bones, "the world's funniest railroad in our town."

This bemused attitude of mine was in existence—that's right—because I wasn't an L. I. R. R. commuter. Like a civilized man, I live in Manhattan and I ride buses, subways and taxicabs.

Let the suburbanites have their patches of lawn, their furnaces to tend, their snow to plow through in the winter—and their L. I. R. R.

"Listen," I used to say to my friends, "I heard a new one about the Long Island. This one will kill you. It seems——."

The other day I was coming back to town after seeing some friends out on the island. The L. I. R. R. train carrying my cosmopolitan body paused briefly in the Sunnyside, L. I., train yard, largest passenger-train yard in the world.

It girded its loins to plunge into the tunnel under the East river that leads into Pennsylvania station, and civilization. It paused—and then it paused some more. It paused, in fact, for 41 minutes by actual count.

Ultimately it wheezed into the damp and windy tube, and we arrived. In the time we lost, empires could have been founded, dynasties overthrown, legs of lamb roasted.

We now have the world's most disgraceful railroad here. I don't know why somebody didn't do something about it long ago: I don't see what's so funny about a train being 41 minutes late. Let the jackasses cackle about the whimsical L. I. R. R. I, for one, am going to do something about it. I repeat, it is a disgrace.

It is all, you see, in the point of view.

THE THEATER SEASON, after a succession of miserable plays for the last month, is beginning to get into high and entertaining gear. Unfortunately, the actors still are ahead of their material, like the pitchers being ahead of the hitters in spring training.

Miss Celeste Holm, for instance, is giving a bravura performance in an alleged comedy named Affairs of State, John van Druten's play, Bell, Book and Candle, hasn't impressed the critics as his greatest—no Voice of the Turtle, this one—but Rex Harrison is playing it beautifully.

Ethel Merman is in a little mediocrity called Call Me Madam, but her performance is, as always, spectacular. The playing of virtually the entire cast in Wolcott Gibbs' Season in the Sun has rescued that drama critic from the potato knives and stilettos of his colleagues.

Miss Pamela Brown, an English Shelley Winters, is intriguing the people in the Fry play, The Lady's Not for Burning, and Uta Hagen is giving the performance of her career in the new Clifford Odets show, The Country Girl.

We have the promise of Louis Calhern doing Lear starting Christmas Day, and many more. So if you're meditating coming to New York for a weekend of entertainment and revelry, come ahead. The show shops are ready for you. And the grog shops, even more so.

IF YOU CONDESCEND to go several cultural cuts below the level of the stage and attend the movies—or so they tell me—Mr. Jose Ferrer, the prize baseball player of the Hickory tavern's Central Park team, is giving the performance of this or any other year in Cyrano de Bergerac.

New Yorkers long have known of Ferrer's brilliance; now the rest of the nation gets its chance. To hear him work over the famous speech beginning "What would you have me do? Seek the patronage of some great man . . ." alone is worth the price.

IF YOU HAVE a non-streamlined carrousel, would you be so kind as to get in touch with our department of parks? The one in Central Park has burned down and a replacement is sought.

"But we want an old-fashioned one, with wooden horses and an air of antiquity," is the word. No bells ringing, lights flashing and signs announcing "tilt," please.

THE STORY OF WHEAT

PERHAPS a bit overdue, the first "death" of the 1951 Kansas wheat crop has reached the press. A. W. Erickson, professional crop reporter of Minneapolis, has just made an inspection, and says the wheat is suffering from lack of moisture, and that green bugs are doing extensive damage.

His claims were immediately countered by reports from various county agents in Western Kansas, who are always quick to deny there is anything amiss. They say that while moisture is needed the situation is not nearly as bad as Erickson has reported.

An unusually dry Fall season has been harmful to the wheat in the Southwest. Continued dry and freezing weather can bring great permanent damage, making necessary Spring planting of row crops. Grain men say, however, there is nothing wrong with the wheat crop that an inch of rain or a good snow will not cure.

Because of its importance as the leading food crop, wheat will be much in the news from now on. It will be killed many times, brought to life by favorable weather conditions, and the complete story will not be told until harvest time, when the combines go forth to bring in the official returns.

A SOUTH DAKOTA man, who has lived in a cave for 42 years, has emerged from his subterranean abode on the prairie. To some, this news will seem strange. They will be unable to understand why anyone would renounce life in a cave at a time like this.

The explanation is simple. The man became too feeble to continue his underground abode out where the storms howl in Winter. This is the only reason that could be given for his action which would seem logical.

Shortly after Mr. Truman became President of the United States, he went to the Potsdam conference where the United States was trimmed by the superior diplomacy of Joe Stalin. The country sympathized with Harry Truman because it was generally felt that he had had no preparation for such great affairs.

Mr. Truman's secretary of state was James Byrnes, who had never devoted himself to such matters before, he having been a United States senator and a justice of the Supreme Court, but neither an historian nor a specialist in international relations. What Truman and Byrnes tried to do was to salvage for the United States the most they could out of the commitments of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins, some of which were not even recorded in the usual way.

In due course, Mr. Truman got rid of Byrnes and appointed George Marshall as his secretary of state, a position in which Marshall was really subordinated to Dean Acheson, a State Department specialist. In time, Acheson succeeded Marshall and worked out the policy of containment.

The policy of containment was always unrealistic. What it amounted to was that Soviet Russia was to stay put. Our stipulations were that Russia was not to move into Iran, Greece, Turkey or Germany. That, of course, was not staying put. It left an enormous area of the earth's surface into which Russia could expand. And from the American standpoint, the areas left open were greater and more important than those closed to Russia.

It was a display of geographic and historic ignorance and it indicated a total lack of understanding of the Marxist movement throughout the world alone. Little help was imperialistic aims of Russia.

One of the accompaniments of the containment policy was the final abandonment of Chiang Kai-shek and Nationalist China. Many factors entered into this decision, but for purposes of this discussion we may limit ourselves to one, namely, that the United States did not possess the economic and military strength to oppose Russia throughout the world alone. Little help was then expected from other countries and less has actually been received than was expected.

The choice of Europe first from which derived, in part, the abandonment of China has now been proved, by the course of events, to have been an error. Acheson sought to cover up the error, but such a coverup could not have been in the national interest. It could only preserve his group in power.

He was given a way out by the Wedemeyer reports on China and Korea. The China report was suppressed for two years; the Korean report even to this day. Acheson confused the situation by a false propaganda concerning the nature and character of Chinese Communists—a propaganda which would have been as false in 1920 as it was in 1948 and 1949. In a word, it was a betrayal of American interests. It was the sacrifice of millions of human beings to the advantage of a few in the White House and the State Department.

This may seem to be too harsh a judgment; yet none other is possible in the circumstances. The course of events permits no other conclusions, for knowledge of the

Six Disorders That Cause A Severe Abdominal Pain

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

CONFRONTED with an acutely ill patient suffering severe abdominal pain, the doctor must consider six possibilities in making his diagnosis — appendicitis, gallbladder infection, ruptured gastric ulcer, acute inflammation of the pancreas, kidney stone colic, and coronary artery disease.

These are the outstanding conditions which cause intense pain in the abdomen and, unfortunately, their symptoms are more or less similar so that one disorder is often mistaken for another. For the experienced doctor, however, there are ways of telling them apart. The age and sex of the patient, for instance, will often be factors, since certain of these ailments have a definite predilection for one sex and one age group. The time of onset of fever and the exact site of the pain will also aid the doctor in distinguishing one type of illness from the other.

Generalized Pain

In appendicitis, for instance, the pain is at first generalized but, within 24 hours, it becomes limited to the lower, right side of the abdomen. Loss of appetite, sickness at the stomach, and vomiting may also be present. Though not usually present at first, fever occurs as the condition progresses. As a general rule, there is an increase in the number of white cells in the blood.

Acute gallbladder infection most often occurs in overweight women past 40. These patients often are unable to eat fried or fatty foods, raw apples, cucumbers, or cabbage. The pain usually comes on in attacks, and is located in the right, upper part of the abdomen. The pain may pass into the back and up into the right shoulder. Fever is often present.

Pulse Rate

In ruptured ulcer, there is increased pulse rate and rapid breathing, together with fever. Since the rupture of an ulcer allows the contents of the bowel to get into the abdomen, peritonitis or inflammation of the lining membrane of the bowel cavity develops.

Acute pancreatitis usually comes on suddenly, following the eating of a heavy meal. There is severe and sudden pain in the abdomen, which passes downward into the legs. When the patient sits up the pain is relieved. When he lies down, it is worse. Vomiting is almost always present. There is some tenderness in the upper part of the abdomen, and the patient usually is in shock with cold and clammy skin, rapid pulse rate, and sub-normal temperature.

Kidney stone colic also produces severe pain. It starts in the lower area of the back and radiates downward into the legs. Vomiting is frequently present, and there is frequent emptying of the bladder.

Coronary Arteries

In coronary artery disease with blocking of the coronary arteries, the pain starts in the chest, in most cases. The attacks come on suddenly with severe pain, which passes on into the left arm. However, it often passes into the abdomen. There is no tenderness in the abdomen, but the abdomen may be distended or swollen.

Whenever an acute attack of pain in the abdomen occurs, there is need for an immediate and careful study by the physician so that the cause may be found and proper treatment carried out at once.

LOOK OUT for LIZA

CHAPTER FORTY

"WELL," said Abby, after Michael left, "really, Liza . . ."

Liza said apologetically, "Well, after all, you are his relatives and I am, too—by marriage. To whom else would he appeal?"

"Anything less like an appeal I have never heard," cried Virginia. "Honestly, Liza, don't you think you are letting your—your interest in Michael carry you too far?"

Abby said, "I am appalled at you, Liza. Only a few minutes ago I was admiring, if not wholly comprehending, your astuteness in money matters. And why, pray, should Michael require funds at this time?"

"He hasn't been working," said Liza earnestly, "that is, not at paid work. He needs to be tided over. Of course, when the book is accepted he will get an advance and repay me. Not that I want to be repaid," she said hastily, reflecting that Michael was apt to repay her for a number of things, all with interest.

"Well, it's your money," Abby said dourly.

"But this," remarked Virginia, "'could be habit-forming.' She paused, struck with a horrible thought. "And something tells me that this isn't the first time."

"Of course it is," denied Liza, far too quickly.

Virginia inquired, "What happened to the money Father left him?"

"It wasn't much, Virginia, and he has to live."

Abby rose. She felt a slight headache approaching. She said majestically, "I don't see why," and went to her room.

"Now she's angry," said Liza sadly.

"She's just concerned about you. It isn't that, darling. You know she wouldn't care what you did with your money as long as it made you happy."

"But helping Michael does make me happy." Liza rose. "I think I'd better go talk with her," she said stoutly.

She found Abby preparing to lie down. No, she didn't require an aspirin. It was just the trip, from which she had not recovered; and the heat, also the hurry and confusion.

"Here," said Liza, "I'll draw the shades." She fussed with pillows and things and Abby said, "I'm all right. I just want a little nap."

"Michael upset you. I'm so sorry."

"You upset me. I can't bear to see you taken in by that good-for-nothing boy." Abby sat up, her headache forgotten. "Mind you, I'm trying to be fair. He is amusing and probably different from anyone you have ever known. You are lonely, most of the people you know were George's friends and George's age. It's natural enough that you should be attracted by Michael. But what alarms me is, how seriously are you attracted?"

Liza said after a moment, "Honestly, I don't know, Abby. He's fun to be with and we have a lot in common."

"That's nonsense."

"Maybe." She put her hand on the older womans. "Please don't scold. I'm having such a good time."

"I'm not scolding, I'm warning you." Abby thought, I have no influence with her, none whatever. And Virginia hasnt. I wonder if there's anybody? She said aloud, "I think I'll try to see Robert tomorrow."

"We're going to see him Friday night."

"Professionally, I mean. Ive been having these headaches for some time," lied Abby. "It's not my eyes, I had those tested in Boston, shortly after you left. I've been putting off seeing Dr. Samlin. He's so old-fashioned. And that new young doctor, Edwards, I can't abide him. He thinks everything from an upset stomach to a broken leg is caused by the fact that your parents rejected you as a child or you had straight hair and your sister's was curly!"

Liza said, with a straight face, "I'll make an appointment for you now, Abby. If his nurse is still in the office. If not, first thing in the morning."

At ten o'clock the following morning Abby entered Dr. Fleming's office, was received by a nurse, and taken through the waiting room, occupied by several women, tapping their expensively shod feet, glancing at magazines and glaring at Abby. At his door, Dr. Fleming came to meet her, his face bright with welcome. "Come in, come in," he said, taking her hand. "How good to see you."

His nurse shut the door, and Abby said, "How are you, Robert? You are looking well."

"I may say the same of you. Sit down. Cigaret? No, of course not." He leaned back in his chair and twinkled at her. "If you are ill, it is not discernible to the naked eye."

"I am not ill," Abby replied testily. "I came on a personal matter."

"I'll send you a bill," he warned, "not that my office is crowded at this season. Many of my patients have taken their symptoms to seashore or mountain or ranch. I'll be getting away myself next month."

"I won't take up much of your time and I won't pay your bill either," said Abby. "I came about Liza."

"Is anything wrong with her?" inquired Fleming, poker-faced. "I can't believe that. She's a healthy young woman. Thin of course, but her bones are small—"

"Bother her bones. I'm worried about her and Michael."

"Why?"

"Don't be obtuse. In the brief time I've been here I've seen enough to alarm me. I came here because of Michael, I may add, at great inconvenience."

"Virginia got in touch with you?"

"She telephoned."

"How did she explain that to Liza?"

"Liza happened to be out. Later Virginia told her that I had phoned—I knew she was to be in New York. It was simple to say I called to ask her to visit me before she returned to Chicago."

"Why couldn't Virginia have telephoned you? It would have been natural."

"She thought Liza would suspect something."

"Which she will when she looks at her telephone bill next month."

"Nonsense, Liza often telephones me. One more call won't be noticed."

"I'm not so sure. But go on."

"I believe she's in love with him," Abby said. "Robert, we have to stop it before its too late."

"What have you against him, Abby?"

"Everything. To sum it up, he is certainly not the man for her."

He said gently, "Liza must be the judge of that. She had little or nothing to say about her marriage. Fortunately it turned out to be extremely happy, one in a thousand. This time—if you are suggesting that she might marry Michael, do permit her to choose for herself."

"But she's a child."

"Hardly that."

"She needs looking after—"

"Of course, my dear, but couldn't Michael qualify?"

"Certainly not. He is irresponsible, facetious—" She broke off. "You know him," she said.

"I do, and am fond of him. He is not all on the surface. Neither you nor Virginia nor I can select Liza's husband. Remember, you disapproved of her marriage to George."

"That was different. And once I knew her and saw her devotion to him—"

"If she marries Michael—and mind you I don't say it's in the cards—she will be equally devoted." He regarded her gravely. "They are young and, I think, will complement each other."

"Bosh."

"You're a hard woman," he said, laughing. "Tell me, why would it be so unsuitable aside from the fact Michael is in your opinion irresponsible?"

"I don't like his attitude toward her."

"What is his attitude?"

"He takes her for granted. He orders her around. Only yesterday she mentioned she wished to cut her hair and he said, 'I won't have it,' and she said, 'Very well, Michael,' meek as Moses."

"Is that all?"

"No." But she could not bring herself to tell him about the check. She would not humiliate her sister-in-law to him.

Fleming said, "My diagnosis is that you are unduly concerned; my prescription, let things alone. You'll succeed only in amusing Michael and antagonizing Liza."

She said in despair, "Robert, I love her."

"Don't we all?"

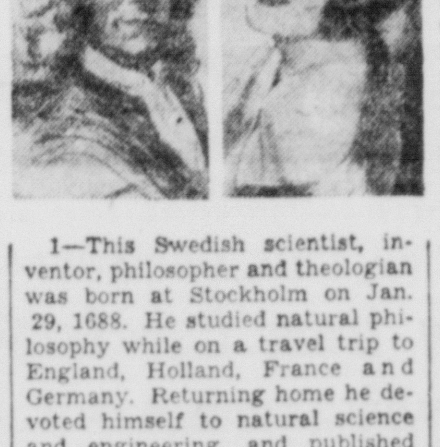
FOLKS OF FAME—GUESS THE NAME



1—This Swedish scientist, inventor, philosopher and theologian was born at Stockholm on Jan. 29, 1688. He studied natural philosophy while on a travel trip to England, Holland, France and Germany. Returning home he devoted himself to natural science and engineering, and published many scientific periodicals. In 1716 he was made assessor-extraordinary on the Swedish board of mines. He invented machines for the transport of boats overland, for which he was given a patent of nobility. He was many years ahead of his time in his scientific theories of geology, astronomy, and physiology. After 1734, he applied himself to discovering the nature of soul and spirit. He claimed to see extraordinary visions and to hear mysterious conversations, to have seen heaven and hell and to have conversed with angels and spirits. In 1747 he resigned his government post and devoted himself to religion. The religious society named for him and promulgating his doctrines is now widely spread. He died in London, England, March 29, 1772. What was his name?

2—A favorite star of motion pictures not so long ago, she was born in Hull, England, March 4, 1905, and received her dramatic training at London's dramatic school. She appeared in the Hippodrome chorus in London in Joybelle, later heading the famous Chicken number in that creation. The Face at the Window, her first film, was also made in London. Later she came to New York and joined the Ziegfeld Follies. She played leads with John Barrymore in The Lotus Eater, and Bits of Life. She played opposite Richard Barthelmess and Milton Sills, and in the Torchy comedies. Subway Sadie, Just Another Blonde, The Crystal Cup, Lady Be Good, The Barker, The Whip, Great Divide, The Office Wife, Man Trouble, etc., were just a few of the pictures in which she appeared. The later ones were Curtain at Eight, Cheaters and Bulldog Drummond at Bay. Who was she?

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Celeste Holm

NEW YORK—I often have wondered how far a man can go in tolerating an inconvenient condition, just so long as it is whimsical. In other words, how long can he listen to the noise and furore of a neighbors' quarrel just because their dialogue sounds like Burns and Allen. Or similar inconveniences which in certain lights appear entertaining.

I know now. Not very far.

The fey adventures of the Long Island railroad always have intrigued me, and one day I hope to write a book about them—the train that got lost, the countless trains that had to stop while the engineer went back for his dropped shovel, the thousands and thousands of trains that were late, the terrible-tempered Mr. Bangs passengers, and so on.

"We have," I used to tell out-of-towners, chuckling and slapping my knee like Mr. Bones, "the world's funniest railroad in our town."

This bemused attitude of mine was in existence—that's right—because I wasn't an L. I. R. R. commuter. Like a civilized man, I live in Manhattan and I ride buses, subways and taxicabs.

Let the suburbanites have their patches of lawn, their furnaces to tend, their snow to plow through in the winter—and their L. I. R. R.

"Listen," I used to say to my friends, "I heard a new one about the Long Island. This one will kill you. It seems——."

The other day I was coming back to town after seeing some friends out on the island. The L. I. R. R. train carrying my cosmopolitan body paused briefly in the Sunnyside, L. I., train yard, largest passenger-train yard in the world.

It girded its loins to plunge into the tunnel under the East river that leads into Pennsylvania station, and civilization. It paused—and then it paused some more. It paused, in fact, for 41 minutes by actual count.

Ultimately it wheezed into the damp and windy tube, and we arrived. In the time we lost, empires could have been founded, dynasties overthrown, legs of lamb roasted.

We now have the world's most disgraceful railroad here. I don't know why somebody didn't do something about it long ago: I don't see what's so funny about a train being 41 minutes late. Let the jackasses cackle about the whimsical L. I. R. R. I, for one, am going to do something about it. I repeat, it is a disgrace.

It is all, you see, in the point of view.

THE THEATER SEASON, after a succession of miserable plays for the last month, is beginning to get into high and entertaining gear. Unfortunately, the actors still are ahead of their material, like the pitchers being ahead of the hitters in spring training.

Miss Celeste Holm, for instance, is giving a bravura performance in an alleged comedy named Affairs of State, John van Druten's play, Bell, Book and Candle, hasn't impressed the critics as his greatest—no Voice of the Turtle, this one—but Rex Harrison is playing it beautifully.

Ethel Merman is in a little mediocrity called Call Me Madam, but her performance is, as always, spectacular. The playing of virtually the entire cast in Wolcott Gibbs' Season in the Sun has rescued that drama critic from the potato knives and stilettos of his colleagues.

Miss Pamela Brown, an English Shelley Winters, is intriguing the people in the Fry play, The Lady's Not for Burning, and Uta Hagen is giving the performance of her career in the new Clifford Odets show, The Country Girl.

We have the promise of Louis Calhern doing Lear starting Christmas Day, and many more. So if you're meditating coming to New York for a weekend of entertainment and revelry, come ahead. The show shops are ready for you. And the grog shops, even more so.

IF YOU CONDESCEND to go several cultural cuts below the level of the stage and attend the movies—or so they tell me—Mr. Jose Ferrer, the prize baseball player of the Hickory tavern's Central Park team, is giving the performance of this or any other year in Cyrano de Bergerac.

New Yorkers long have known of Ferrer's brilliance; now the rest of the nation gets its chance. To hear him work over the famous speech beginning "What would you have me do? Seek the patronage of some great man . . ." alone is worth the price.

IF YOU HAVE a non-streamlined carrousel, would you be so kind as to get in touch with our department of parks? The one in Central Park has burned down and a replacement is sought.

"But we want an old-fashioned one, with wooden horses and an air of antiquity," is the word. No bells ringing, lights flashing and signs announcing "tilt," please.

Bennett Cerf's

Try, Stop Me

A man who had been a book salesman for twenty years decided there was more money in selling vacuum cleaners, and secured the local agency for a well-known brand. His very first prospect was a skeptical housewife who asked, "Are you sure that contraption will gather up every single bit of dirt?" "Lady," said the salesman earnestly, "I ran this cleaner lightly over a copy of Lady Chatterley's Lover yesterday, and when I was finished, it was Louisa Alcott's Little Women!"

* * *

John O'Connell reports that Author Eric Hodgins finds writing a monumental chore. When he finished "Blanding's Way," for instance, his almost-new typewriter was in need of extensive repairs. The man who had sold him the machine said, "We get back twenty-year-old typewriters that aren't half as beat up as this." Hodgins reported later, "I had to ask him to repeat that statement. The way I feel, I was sure he had said eighty-year-old authors."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

There is much disturbing news and the information hot from Hawaii that Esther Williams has taken to eating raw fish is not quite the staggering blow it might have been in happier times.

With all the confusion existing in the world today it is quite possible that one could hurry past Miss Williams without (1) noticing that it was Miss Williams and-or (2) that she was gnawing on a fish.

A few years back the Gallup people would have been backing citizens into doorways to ask: (1) Do you believe that raw fish does anything for you? (2) Do you believe that raw fish does anything for Esther Williams? (3) Undecided?

Today even the information that there is, has been or will be a Bankhead-Davis or Davis-Bankhead feud appears to be running second in the news to reports of that larger feud which seems destined to involve more persons.

It's nice to have known a world though in which Hollywood feuds seemed terribly important at the time and we can't wait to get back to those delightful days.

Meanwhile who's feeding the raw meet to Mao? That's what we want to know.

200 Present As Eastern Star Installs Officers

Setting for the installation ceremony of Circleville chapter, Order of Eastern Star Tuesday evening depicted an ocean scene with a ship at anchor.

About 200 persons attended the affair.

Chapter room decorations included blue and white carnations, white chrysanthemums and candles burning in a seven branched candelabra intertwined with fern.

Miss Marie L. Hamilton served as installing officer. She was assisted by Mrs. Max Borror, Mrs. Frank Bowling, Mrs. Cecil Noecker, Mrs. Tom Acord, Mrs. Joseph Brink, Miss Reba Lee, Mrs. Emmitt Barnhart and Carl Bennett.

Mrs. Donald Collins was installed as worthy matron and Homer Reber, her father, as worthy patron. Mrs. Guy Cline was installed as associate matron and Arthur Sark as associate patron.

Mrs. George Adkins assumed her office as secretary and Miss Katherine Mead as treasurer. Conductress for the year will be Mrs. John Evans. Associate conductress is Mrs. Walden Reichelderfer.

Mrs. Homer Reber was installed as chaplain, Miss Anne Moeller as marshal, Mrs. Ralph Dunkle as organist.

Other officers assuming their roles in the ceremony were Mrs. Roy Marshall as Adah, Mrs. Eric Peters as Ruth; Mrs. Robert Wood as Esther; Mrs. Joseph Peters as Martha; Mrs. George Kuhn as Electa, Mrs. David McDonald as warder and Walden Reichelderfer as sentinel.

The installation ceremony, "Harbor Lights," with Mrs. Kenneth Robbins as reader, carried out the theme of the stage setting. The floral marshal, Mrs. Carl Bennett, presented the newly installed star points with a gift from the worthy matron.

Following the presentation of flowers to Mrs. Collins from her husband, Mrs. Dunkle sang "Through the Years." Mr. and Mrs. Reber also received flowers from Mrs. Dunkle and Mrs. Collins.

Miss Marie Hamilton presented Mrs. Reber with a past matron's jewel, gift of the chapter and her husband.

During the intermission preceding the installation service Mrs. Richard Robinson sang "The Holy Hour" by William Clark.

Mrs. Reber, retiring worthy matron, presided at the opening of the meeting.

Among the guests present were P. R. Devere, past grand patron of Grand chapter of Ohio; Mrs. Max Morrow, deputy grand matron of District 23, Mrs. Carl Hohenstein, president of District 23 and worthy matron and patrons of 1949 and 1950.

REDS WANT ISLE BADLY

Chennault Says Formosa Is Key To Asia Control

Editor's Note: Does the tremendous onslaught in Korea by Communist China make World War III inevitable? Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, one of the world's leading authorities on the Far East, says it does not. In the following article, Chennault gives a plan of action which he believes provides the chance to halt Asian Communism without plunging the U. S. into all-out war with China, or engulfing the entire free world in conflict.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—In the Communist book of Asiatic strategy, the conquest of a single small island in the Pacific—Formosa—occupies a chapter given top priority by the Red Russian rulers of China.

Their determination to win this island stronghold burns no less fiercely than Communist designs on Korea, already demonstrated so brutally.

If the Communists' Formosan objective appears secondary in the new Korean turmoil, we can be sure that the Russians wish it to be forgotten.

When they consider the time right, and the element of surprise is on their side, the Kremlin-controlled troops will strike. Make no mistake about it.

WHEN SECRETARY of State Acheson announced, on Jan. 12, 1950, that America's Pacific defense line ran along the Aleutians, through Japan and the Ryukyu Islands, to the Philippines, the Russian mind concluded happily that both Korea and Formosa were then and there abandoned by the West. Forthwith, the Communist plan to move into the new power vacuums was drafted and set in motion. Through all the furor of Korean fighting, it remains unchanged.

Obscured as it is amid the bitter struggle over Korea, United Nations debate on world policy, and plans for American defense at home, the Red peril to Formosa and, hence, the entire Pacific theatre, can be all too easily overlooked. This, the United States must prevent. We have already made too many mistakes like this in the past.

World War II Allies naively handed Russia the Kurile Islands, pointing down from the North Pacific toward Japan like a Red dagger.

A Communist Formosa would aim a second Red lancet toward Tokyo, from the south. Equally, such a South Pacific Communist spearhead would then threaten the uneasy Philippines, only 250 miles away—half an hour's flying time in a jet airplane.

In the furiously boiling Far East cauldron, it is dangerously unwise to underestimate physical danger to Japan and the Philippines from Moscow-controlled Communists.

In Red China's avowed plan to take Formosa lies a danger to the West of no less gravity than the Communist threat to Korea. Small as it is—13,000 square miles and 8,000,000 population—Formosa represents the ultimate key to anti-Communism in the Far East.

THE RED CHINESE onslaught in Korea must first be contained and isolated; but this is not impossible. Once this is accomplished, from the island of Formosa, and only from here, the Western world can raise an effective eastern challenge to trans-Asian Communism which will not, necessarily, plunge civilization into a worldwide struggle for survival.

This cannot be accomplished from Korea, Indo-China, Burma or Siam on the mainland. Japan is too far away for use except as a secondary base. Numerous compelling geopolitical factors make Formosa the one practical anti-Communism base in the Pacific.

First, Formosa is geographically close to Communist China: A strong, natural defense outpost for a jumpoff point for any moves which the Reds might force on a free world by new Asian aggressions.

On the island now is a large anti-Communist army in being and anxious to fight. This army is composed of native Chinese who have been driven from their home shores by the Communists. Its troops can battle Chinese Communists on the mainland with no risk of being branded as aggressors. Nor will their warfare on the mainland incite Chinese hatred. Moreover, Formosa's fertile farm lands produce more than enough food to support this army.

Like England in the Atlantic, Formosa in the Pacific constitutes a potent U. S. or United Nations bastion of defense or offense, against complete Communist subjugation of a contiguous great continent—Asia.

KOREA, WHERE the Chinese Communist-United Nations battle was joined, cannot be put to such use, for both strategic and political reasons. Should either Korean or United Nations forces move deep into Manchuria or Communist China — beyond obvious limits of defense strategy countering invasion of Korea — they could be classed as aggressors.

Formosa must not only be held. Its Nationalist Chinese troops must be used by the anti-Communist world. Else, Red domination of all Asia is a certainty, and its accomplishment not far off.

In his second instalment, General Chennault outlines military technique which he believes would break the Red hold on China.

Ohio is planning a great Sesqui-centennial celebration in 1953.

REDS WANT ISLE BADLY

Chennault Says Formosa Is Key To Asia Control

Editor's Note: Does the tremendous onslaught in Korea by Communist China make World War III inevitable? Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, one of the world's leading authorities on the Far East, says it does not. In the following article, Chennault gives a plan c action which he believes provides the chance to halt Asian Communism without plunging the U. S. into all-out war with China, or engulfing the entire free world in conflict.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—In the Communist book of Asiatic strategy, the conquest of a single small island in the Pacific—Formosa—occupies a chapter given top priority by the Red Russian rulers of China.

Their determination to win this island stronghold burns no less fiercely than Communist designs on Korea, already demonstrated so brutally.

If the Communists' Formosan objective appears secondary in the new Korean turmoil, we can be sure that the Russians wish it to be forgotten.

When they consider the time right, and the element of surprise is on their side, the Kremlin-controlled troops will strike. Make no mistake about it.

WHEN SECRETARY of State Acheson announced, on Jan. 12, 1950, that America's Pacific defense line ran along the Aleutians, through Japan and the Ryukyu Islands, to the Philippines, the Russian mind concluded happily that both Korea and Formosa were then and there abandoned by the West. Forthwith, the Communist plan to move into the new power vacuums was drafted and set in motion. Through all the furor of Korean fighting, it remains unchanged.

Obscured as it is amid the bitter struggle over Korea, United Nations debate on world policy, and plans for American defense at home, the Red peril to Formosa and, hence, the entire Pacific theatre, can be all too easily overlooked. This, the United States must prevent. We have already made too many mistakes like this in the past.

World War II Allies naively handed Russia the Kurile Islands, pointing down from the North Pacific toward Japan like a Red dagger.

A Communist Formosa would aim a second Red lancet toward Tokyo, from the south. Equally, such a South Pacific Communist spearhead would then threaten the uneasy Philippines, only 250 miles away—half an hour's flying time in a jet airplane.

In the furiously boiling Far East cauldron, it is dangerously unwise to underestimate physical danger to Japan and the Philippines from Moscow-controlled Communists.

In Red China's avowed plan to take Formosa lies a danger to the West of no less gravity than the Communist threat to Korea. Small as it is—13,000 square miles and 8,000,000 population—Formosa represents the ultimate key to anti-Communism in the Far East.

THE RED CHINESE onslaught in Korea must first be contained and isolated; but this is not impossible. Once this is accomplished, from the island of Formosa, and only from here, the Western world can raise an effective eastern challenge to trans-Asian Communism which will not, necessarily, plunge civilization into a worldwide struggle for survival.

This cannot be accomplished from Korea, Indo-China, Burma or Siam on the mainland. Japan is too far away for use except as a secondary base. Numerous compelling geopolitical factors make Formosa the one practical anti-Communism base in the Pacific.

First, Formosa is geographically close to Communist China: A strong, natural defense outpost for a jumpoff point for any moves which the Reds might force on a free world by new Asian aggressions.

On the island now is a large anti-Communist army in being and anxious to fight. This army is composed of native Chinese who have been driven from their home shores by the Communists. Its troops can battle Chinese Communists on the mainland with no risk of being branded as aggressors. Nor will their warfare on the mainland incite Chinese hatred. Moreover, Formosa's fertile farm lands produce more than enough food to support this army.

Like England in the Atlantic, Formosa in the Pacific constitutes a potent U. S. or United Nations bastion of defense or offense, against complete Communist subjugation of a contiguous great continent—Asia.

KOREA, WHERE the Chinese Communist-United Nations battle was joined, cannot be put to such use, for both strategic and political reasons. Should either Korean or United Nations forces move deep into Manchuria or Communist China — beyond obvious limits of defense strategy countering invasion of Korea — they could be classed as aggressors.

Formosa must not only be held. Its Nationalist Chinese troops must be used by the anti-Communist world. Else, Red domination of all Asia is a certainty, and its accomplishment not far off.

In his second instalment, General Chennault outlines military technique which he believes would break the Red hold on China.

Ohio is planning a great Sesqui-centennial celebration in 1953.

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President
Harding College

People of good will have hoped and prayed since the dawn of civilization for "peace and plenty" on the earth. Philosophers have propounded ten thousand learned theories on how it could be achieved. But only one recipe for lasting peace has appeared. The Man of Galilee gave it to the world.

Man has failed to make it work. Peace on earth thus remains a spiritual goal. It perhaps is THE goal, mankind's ultimate quest, the Why and Wherefore of life; for it cannot be attained until Christianity is lived in all nations, becomes a flame in all men's hearts.

On the other hand, "plenty" is a relative term in popular understanding. The word makes me recall the picture in my old school reader showing "The First Thanksgiving" as it was observed by the American pilgrims. The "plenty" in that picture was food—turkey, and pumpkin pie, and potatoes baked under the coals.

The Pilgrims were thankful for their prospects in the new world, for their freedom, and for their "plenty" or sufficiency of food.

Unquestionably the Pilgrims would have been only a little less thankful had their harvest of foodstuff been considerably less bountiful. Yet "bread"—meaning, in its broadest sense, a sufficiency of food, or "plenty"—has become the great political and social watchword in our strifetorn world. Some people have made "bread" a god.

THE COMMUNIST leaders are marshalling great masses of humanity to make war over it—a war they describe as the "Have Nots" against the "Haves."

In sections of Europe, in Asia and especially in the Orient, I have seen countless millions of poverty-stricken people whose every walking moment had to be concerned with seeking food for survival. Their agriculture had progressed little in the last thousand years. It is upon these people, uninformed and constantly at grips with hunger, that the Kremlin masters are waging their propaganda wars. Had these masses achieved any substantial degree of "plenty" it is doubtful that the Reds would have succeeded so well in this effort.

Thus "plenty" is a practical stepstone toward peace on earth as well as a humane ideal. We in America have found a recipe for "plenty"—our freedom philosophy in government and our free enterprise economic system.

It hasn't made everybody rich but the poorest American citizen is twice as well fed as ninety-nine percent of Asia's millions—and we are a nation of peace-lovers. The degree and the wide distribution of America's "plenty" caused the Communist plotters long ago to give up the idea of violent revolution here. So "plenty" is a factor in war or peace.

Until world-girdling, war-making Communism is overcome, we need as a nation to concentrate our thinking, and planning, and action on that objective. But if we are victorious there is a great challenging task awaiting—the expansion of "plenty" to the underdeveloped and unwisely used regions of the earth.

WE CANNOT DO IT by sending federal government funds and a handful of technicians to Borneo and Mandalay; or a steel plant or electric generator to Yugoslavia, or a combine to China.

The two great hopes for future peace and plenty on earth (and the expansion of Christianity) are education and research. Once the world menace of international Communism is overcome, we could take a fraction of the amount of money spent in Europe on the Marshall Plan and bring a million college-age youth to America to learn, first hand, what makes America tick.

Those with aptitudes could be kept here for extended training in the ways American people get things done—in agriculture, in industry, in forestry and mineral development.

Think of what 100,000 Chinese with American agricultural and industrial knowhow, and with a first hand knowledge of our distribution and marketing system, could do in a generation in a free enterprise China! In 25 or 30 years such a force could bring that wallowing backward country upon the road of progress and plenty.

The same thing could transpire in every other nation. And during that 30 years, American science, through research would be further exploring and developing the limitless possibilities of God's material blessings to the people of the earth—the natural resources.

Divorce Filed By Woman; Alimony Ordered

A petition for divorce has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Izetta Mae Robinson against Harold Willard Robinson.

The wife's petition accuses Robinson of gross neglect and extreme cruelty. They were married Feb. 7, 1948 in Greenup, Ky., and have two children.

The wife asks for the divorce, alimony, custody of the children and a restraining order to keep the husband from molesting her. The restraining order was granted by Judge William D. Radcliff.

Also in common pleas court Judge Radcliff has ordered Richard E. Davis to pay $10 a week temporary alimony to Amy B. Davis pending final disposition of a divorce action.

The judge ordered another $10 a week temporary alimony to be paid by Jesse W. Smith to Cora L. Smith pending disposition of a divorce action. The husband was also ordered to pay utility bills.

Jubilee Week Services Open In First EUB

Jubilee Week services in Circleville First Evangelical United Brethren church opened Tuesday night with a large attendance.

Cecil Andrews, president of the brotherhood, welcomed the people to the service in his opening greetings as presiding officer.

Montford Kirkwood Jr. led the congregation in an old-fashioned songfest with Miss Lucille Kirkwood at the organ.

Miss Gladys Noggle, president of the Womens' Society of World Service, led the devotions with an emphasis upon the purpose of Christ's coming to the world to save all people.

She stressed the Christian need for a world outlook and responsibility in sending the gospel to all people.

Loyal Daughter Class quartet, consisting of Mrs. Charles Ater, Mrs. Frank Hawkes, Mrs. Carl Porter and Mrs. Russell Jones, sang a special number.

The Rev. J. Edwin Huston, former pastor of the church and now minister in Crooksville, delivered the sermon from the theme, "Where Do You Live?"

HE SAID THAT "each individual lives within the area of life he chooses. The area of life in which we live determines the way we go in life. The life of Jesus is the best standard of living but often people refuse to follow His way. To seek and find the will of God and then to live in His will is the best place to live."

Services will continue Wednesday night with Clarence Radcliffe, trustee president, presiding; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Beery in charge of the music; the board of class leaders directing devotions and the Rev. Alonzo Hill, pastor of Pilgrim Holiness church, delivering the sermon. The adult choir will furnish special music.

Services will begin at 8 p. m. instead of 7:30 p. m. as originally scheduled.

Big 3 Due For Parley

PARIS, Dec. 6 — A new approach to the Far Eastern crisis was foreshadowed today by the announcement that American, British and French representatives are scheduled to meet her tomorrow to consider replies to the Soviet proposal on German unification.

The meeting will take up the Russian note of Nov. 3 which suggested a meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers to discuss plans for German unifications.

The Western powers are agreed that any meeting to consider Germany only would prove fruitless. However, the French, on Nov. 8, announced they would agree to such a parley if the question of the Far East and an Austrian peace treaty were included.

Detectives Seek Clews In Death Of Woman, 40

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6—Columbus detectives intensified their search for clews ot day in the slaying of a 40-year-old ex-Wave a few feet from the front door of her home.

Miss Virginia Ann Bates, a dining room manager in a downtown Columbus hotel, died yesterday a few hours after she was fatally shot.

Her mother found her lying on the curb with a bullet wound in her head.

Detectives questioned the woman's fellow employes and neighbors yesterday but to no avail. A suspect held for questioning was released when he established an unbreakable alibi.

The one motive predominant in the case is robbery. The woman's purse and gloves still are missing. A wrist watch originally believed missing was found in her home.

Neighbors told police they heard voices raised as if in an argument and five minutes later heard a shot. An autopsy revealed that the woman had been shot in the left forehead with a .22-caliber bullet. Powder impressions indicated the gun was not more than 18 inches from her head when she was shot.

Louis Joliet, a French trader, ventured to Lake Erie in 1669 and became the first white man to visit that body of water.

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President
Harding College

People of good will have hoped and prayed since the dawn of civilization for "peace and plenty" on the earth. Philosophers have propounded ten thousand learned theories on how it could be achieved. But only one recipe for lasting peace has appeared. The Man of Galilee gave it to the world.

Man has failed to make it work. Peace on earth thus remains a spiritual goal. It perhaps is THE goal, mankind's ultimate quest, the Why and Wherefore of life; for it cannot be attained until Christianity is lived in all nations, becomes a flame in all men's hearts.

On the other hand, "plenty" is a relative term in popular understanding. The word makes me recall the picture in my old school reader showing "The First Thanksgiving" as it was observed by the American pilgrims. The "plenty" in that picture was food—turkey, and pumpkin pie, and potatoes baked under the coals.

The Pilgrims were thankful for their prospects in the new world, for their freedom, and for their "plenty" or sufficiency of food.

Unquestionably the Pilgrims would have been only a little less thankful had their harvest of foodstuff been considerably less bountiful. Yet "bread"—meaning, in its broadest sense, a sufficiency of food, or "plenty"—has become the great political and social watchword in our strifetorn world. Some people have made "bread" a god.

THE COMMUNIST leaders are marshalling great masses of humanity to make war over it—a war they describe as the "Have Nots" against the "Haves."

In sections of Europe, in Asia and especially in the Orient, I have seen countless millions of poverty-stricken people whose every walking moment had to be concerned with seeking food for survival. Their agriculture had progressed little in the last thousand years. It is upon these people, uninformed and constantly at grips with hunger, that the Kremlin masters are waging their propaganda wars. Had these masses achieved any substantial degree of "plenty" it is doubtful that the Reds would have succeeded so well in this effort.

Thus "plenty" is a practical stepstone toward peace on earth as well as a humane ideal. We in America have found a recipe for "plenty"—our freedom philosophy in government and our free enterprise economic system.

It hasn't made everybody rich but the poorest American citizen is twice as well fed as ninety-nine percent of Asia's millions—and we are a nation of peace-lovers. The degree and the wide distribution of America's "plenty" caused the Communist plotters long ago to give up the idea of violent revolution here. So "plenty" is a factor in war or peace.

Until world-girdling, war-making Communism is overcome, we need as a nation to concentrate our thinking, and planning, and action on that objective. But if we are victorious there is a great challenging task awaiting—the expansion of "plenty" to the underdeveloped and unwisely used regions of the earth.

WE CANNOT DO IT by sending federal government funds and a handful of technicians to Borneo and Mandalay; or a steel plant or electric generator to Yugoslavia, or a combine to China.

The two great hopes for future peace and plenty on earth (and the expansion of Christianity) are education and research. Once the world menace of international Communism is overcome, we could take a fraction of the amount of money spent in Europe on the Marshall Plan and bring a million college-age youth to America to learn, first hand, what makes America tick.

Those with aptitudes could be kept here for extended training in the ways American people get things done—in agriculture, in industry, in forestry and mineral development.

Think of what 100,000 Chinese with American agricultural and industrial knowhow, and with a first hand knowledge of our distribution and marketing system, could do in a generation in a free enterprise China! In 25 or 30 years such a force could bring that wallowing backward country upon the road of progress and plenty.

The same thing could transpire in every other nation. And during that 30 years, American science, through research would be further exploring and developing the limitless possibilities of God's material blessings to the people of the earth—the natural resources.

Divorce Filed By Woman; Alimony Ordered

A petition for divorce has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Izetta Mae Robinson against Harold Willard Robinson.

The wife's petition accuses Robinson of gross neglect and extreme cruelty. They were married Feb. 7, 1948 in Greenup, Ky., and have two children.

The wife asks for the divorce, alimony, custody of the children and a restraining order to keep the husband from molesting her. The restraining order was granted by Judge William D. Radcliff.

Also in common pleas court Judge Radcliff has ordered Richard E. Davis to pay $10 a week temporary alimony to Amy B. Davis pending final disposition of a divorce action.

The judge ordered another $10 a week temporary alimony to be paid by Jesse W. Smith to Cora L. Smith pending disposition of a divorce action. The husband was also ordered to pay utility bills.

Jubilee Week Services Open In First EUB

Jubilee Week services in Circleville First Evangelical United Brethren church opened Tuesday night with a large attendance.

Cecil Andrews, president of the brotherhood, welcomed the people to the service in his opening greetings as presiding officer.

Montford Kirkwood Jr. led the congregation in an old-fashioned songfest with Miss Lucille Kirkwood at the organ.

Miss Gladys Noggle, president of the Womens' Society of World Service, led the devotions with an emphasis upon the purpose of Christ's coming to the world to save all people.

She stressed the Christian need for a world outlook and responsibility in sending the gospel to all people.

Loyal Daughter Class quartet, consisting of Mrs. Charles Ater, Mrs. Frank Hawkes, Mrs. Carl Porter and Mrs. Russell Jones, sang a special number.

The Rev. J. Edwin Huston, former pastor of the church and now minister in Crooksville, delivered the sermon from the theme, "Where Do You Live?"

HE SAID THAT "each individual lives within the area of life he chooses. The area of life in which we live determines the way we go in life. The life of Jesus is the best standard of living but often people refuse to follow His way. To seek and find the will of God and then to live in His will is the best place to live."

Services will continue Wednesday night with Clarence Radcliffe, trustee president, presiding; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Beery in charge of the music; the board of class leaders directing devotions and the Rev. Alonzo Hill, pastor of Pilgrim Holiness church, delivering the sermon. The adult choir will furnish special music.

Services will begin at 8 p. m. instead of 7:30 p. m. as originally scheduled.

Big 3 Due For Parley

PARIS, Dec. 6 — A new approach to the Far Eastern crisis was foreshadowed today by the announcement that American, British and French representatives are scheduled to meet her tomorrow to consider replies to the Soviet proposal on German unification.

The meeting will take up the Russian note of Nov. 3 which suggested a meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers to discuss plans for German unifications.

The Western powers are agreed that any meeting to consider Germany only would prove fruitless. However, the French, on Nov. 8, announced they would agree to such a parley if the question of the Far East and an Austrian peace treaty were included.

Detectives Seek Clews In Death Of Woman, 40

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6—Columbus detectives intensified their search for clews otday in the slaying of a 40-year-old ex-Wave a few feet from the front door of her home.

Miss Virginia Ann Bates, a dining room manager in a downtown Columbus hotel, died yesterday a few hours after she was fatally shot.

Her mother found her lying on the curb with a bullet wound in her head.

Detectives questioned the woman's fellow employes and neighbors yesterday but to no avail. A suspect held for questioning was released when he established an unbreakable alibi.

The one motive predominant in the case is robbery. The woman's purse and gloves still are missing. A wrist watch originally believed missing was found in her home.

Neighbors told police they heard voices raised as if in an argument and five minutes later heard a shot. An autopsy revealed that the woman had been shot in the left forehead with a .22-caliber bullet. Powder impressions indicated the gun was not more than 18 inches from her head when she was shot.

Louis Joliet, a French trader, ventured to Lake Erie in 1669 and became the first white man to visit that body of water.

Christmas SHOPPING

for Him--Her--Sister--Brother--Dad and Mother

DO YOU have someone on your list that is particularly hard to buy for because she has "just everything"? Well we have found the perfect gift for that person—a Jane Art Floral atomizer. She'll love it — a plexiglas atomizer featuring exquisite internally carved and colored floral designs. Fill it with her favorite perfume and you have a perfect gift. MiLady's Beauty and Gift Shop is exclusive agents for these products. The atomizer sells for $3.95.

* * *

IF YOU ARE planning to get an electric train for a Christmas gift for Junior we suggest that you drop into Hoover Music Store and invest in a ship model or airplane model, for his dad. That is if you wish Junior to enjoy the train. And don't think his dad would not enjoy the model kits. All the parts are molded to shape and are so easily assembled. A really delightful gift if you don't get the electric train.

GET DAD a new hat for Christmas—how he will love your thoughtfulness and admire your thrift if your selection is an Adam Hat from United Department Stores. Adam Hats—nationally advertised sell from $5 to $7.50.

SMOKERS ARE always welcome gifts for the men of the family—especially if they are the kind that they can tote around where they wish to use them. Make his gift this Christmas—a smoker. Before you select it, however, see the line of smokers at Mason Furniture.

MAKE MOTHER'S gift Revere Ware this Christmas—how she will love it and it will be a lasting reminder of your thoughtfulness. Made of beautiful copper-clad stainless steel, it is quick-heating and a lifetime utensil. You may get a set or just a separate piece. She would also enjoy having a utensil rack on which to display this beautiful ware. Racks sell for only $2.50. Stop in at Harpster and Yost and select mother's gift of Revere Ware today.

* * *

TEEN-AGE girls long for beautiful surroundings — give your daughter a Hollywood Bed especially designed for her, as her Christmas gift. She may select the material that will harmonize with the decor of her room and it will be made just as she wishes it. Ward's Upholstery will make a Hollywood Bed complete for as little as $25. Call 135 and make an appointment to select the material you wish from a large assortment of different fabrics.

* * *

CHRISTMAS would not be complete for the kiddies if among the gifts a Tinker Toy was not included. At Harpster and Yost a set of Tinker Toys for only $1.50 includes 118 parts and metal crank to make the models run. A child can build over 40 different structures with these rods and spools. Other sets are available from 50c to $2.50.

* * *

A BABY RING for the new arrival at Christmas time — something to get for the friend's new baby—his first ring, tiny bands of gold that sell as low as $1.50 at L. M. Butch Company, Jewelers.

* * *

A TEETORBABE would be a very appropriate gift for that small tot who is beginning to want amusement—it would save mother many hours of worry and care. Strong, sturdy frames of metal with a chair of heavy canvas that is built to last. At Mason Furniture they sell for $5.65.

GIVE THE girl friends identification bracelets, they'll love them—just a fad but how popular. At L. M. Butch Company, Jewelers they start at $3.75. They have them also in gold and silver.

* * *

A PICTURE window thru which to view the great outdoors—especially on Christmas—a white one we hope. Investigate the cost of a Truscon steel frame that would endure a lifetime. With it too there will be no rattle or warp. They are weather-tight so they also save fuel yet they cost no more than ordinary window—Basic Construction Materials.

* * *

LITTLE GIRLS are the housewives of tomorrow and it is only natural for them to love small pieces of furniture as playthings — Blue Furniture has a line of small tables and chairs that any small girl would love to find under her Christmas tree. Plastic top tables with 2 chairs, metal frames for only $9.95 and beautiful Maple tables, sturdily made for $17.95. The Maple tables and chairs are exceptionally well constructed and will last for years.

* * *

HERE'S A GIFT that the sportsman especially would like—a sturdy chrome plated barrel flashlight — position switch with signal button. Excellent for campers, for emergency use around the house and should be standard equipment in every car. The plated handle makes it so easily used. Only $1.95 at Harpster and Yost.

* * *

FOR JUNIOR'S gift to dad or his big brother a key-ring would be perfect. At L. M. Butch Company, Jewelers, the key chains start at $2.50 each and they are the kind that would be thoroughly appreciated.

* * *

IF YOU REALLY wish to please any mother or housewife—give her Christmas gifts for the home—occasional tables — she never has too many. A new cocktail table, a drum table or perhaps two step-end tables for either end of the davenport, maybe a lamp table with shelf or a two-drawer commode for the bedroom. When buying tables make certain they are Mersman the biggest name in tables. Remember tables are the costume jewelry of the home.

Sokolsky's

facts, unavailable to the people, must have been available to the President and his secretary of state.

They must have known the facts of the relations of nations within the Communist world; how policies were made in the Kremlin for the Cominform countries; that the Chinese Communists had been part of the Third International since 1920—active, effective, and recognized.

Someone in the State Department must have studied the vast files on the subject, beginning with the "Students Movement" in 1919 and proceeding to this day. Someone must have told Acheson of the training schools for Chinese Communists in Irkutsk, Leningrad and Moscow—of the Sun Yat-sen institute at Moscow.

Acheson's calculation of Europe first involved the cost of the Marshall Plan and European military aid. The Russians rejected Acheson's theory, following rather the conceptions of Lenin. They placed East Asia first on their program, conquering China, part of Korea and paving the way to India.

The Korean war completely and finally disposes of the policy of containment. Its failure has forced every other country to reexamine its own policies and reappraise its situation. It has thrown all the world into confusion and has imperilled America.

Trojans Score Smashing 54-34 Win Over Dublin

Darby Trojans took to the road Tuesday to humble Dublin with a smashing 54-34 victory on the Dublin court.

The Trojan quintet posted a substantial 15-7 advantage in the first period, then substituted freely to give its reservists experience.

Walter Kreider was high point man for the victorious Trojans in the clash with a total of 16 points, trailed by Teammate Cliff Chaffin, who tallied 14. Dublin's McKittrick was high for the losers with a total of 13 points.

Darby reservists made the evening complete for Trojan by battling down to a 29-27 victory in a thriller over the Dublin subs. The victory was the fifth in a row for the Trojan reserves.

Box score of the lopsided varsity fracas follows:

Jackson 'Cats Suffer 63-50 Loss To Amanda

Jackson Wildcat cagers were tamed Tuesday when Amanda invaded the Jackson home court to hand the Cats a 63-50 defeat.

Jackson began its contest against Amanda with a 14-13 margin in the first period, although faltering to trail at half-time by 32-26.

Amanda's Loy was top scorer in the tilt with a total of 20 points, while R. Neff led Wildcat scoring with a total of 15 points.

Jackson's reserve Cat team also faltered in the evening's opener, losing by a 34-21 margin to the invading reservists.

The Jackson Wildcats will move into Atlanta Friday to meet the Red Raiders in a Pickaway County Basketball League skirmish. Box score of Tuesday's varsity loss follows:

John Valentine, John Cockrell Given Honors

Two of Circleville's outstanding 1950 gridiron players have received honors in the annual Associated Press All-Ohio team selection.

They are Big John Valentine, powerhouse fullback for the Tigers this season, and veteran tackle John Cockrell, extra-point specialist.

Both boys were named to the honorable mention list on the AP honor team, chosen by coaches, sportswriters and sportscasters.

The honor was the second of its kind for Big John, who also earned honorable mention on the International News Service "dream team."

* * *

THE CIRCLEVILLE pair was exclusive in the selection in that they were among only four central Ohio lads selected for singular honors during the poll.

Upper Arlington's deer-footed Doug Goodsell, dubbed "Mr. Touchdown," was the outstanding favorite on the AP first team selection.

Other outstanding Ohio high school players ranking on the AP first team were:

Bob Harris of Barberton and Jerry Ford of Akron South, ends; Don Swartz of Newark and Sam Palumbo of Cleveland Collinwood, tackles; Jim Reichenbach of Massillon and Jack Appel of Portsmouth, guards; Dick Szymanski of Toledo Libbey, center; Don Bucci of Youngstown East, quarterback; Ray Perkins of Lakewood, halfback with Goodsell; and Bob Howe of Massillon, fullback.

Williamsport Is Victor

Williamsport's Deers got off to a slow start in their game against Madison Mills Friday night, but when they did get rolling there was no stopping.

When the final gun sounded, Williamsport had chalked up a 55-43 victory.

At the end of the first quarter, however, it appeared as if the Deers were in for a rough evening. They trailed 13-11. At the half, Williamsport had edged into a 27-24 lead and were never threatened in the last half.

Basics Lose By 46-41 Margin

Circleville Basic basketball team fell to a 46-41 defeat at the hands of a Lockbourne Airforce team Tuesday in Columbus.

The Basics were paced in scoring during the fracas by "Red" Wilson, former Ashville ace, who tallied 12 points.

Christmas SHOPPING

for Him--Her--Sister--Brother--Dad and Mother

DO YOU have someone on your list that is particularly hard to buy for because she has "just everything"? Well we have found the perfect gift for that person—a Jane Art Floral atomizer. She'll love it — a plexiglas atomizer featuring exquisite internally carved and colored floral designs. Fill it with her favorite perfume and you have a perfect gift. MiLady's Beauty and Gift Shop is exclusive agents for these products. The atomizer sells for $3.95.

* * *

IF YOU ARE planning to get an electric train for a Christmas gift for Junior we suggest that you drop into Hoover Music Store and invest in a ship model or airplane model, for his dad. That is if you wish Junior to enjoy the train. And don't think his dad would not enjoy the model kits. All the parts are molded to shape and are so easily assembled. A really delightful gift if you don't get the electric train.

GET DAD a new hat for Christmas—how he will love your thoughtfulness and admire your thrift if your selection is an Adam Hat from United Department Stores. Adam Hats—nationally advertised sell from $5 to $7.50.

SMOKERS ARE always welcome gifts for the men of the family—especially if they are the kind that they can tote around where they wish to use them. Make his gift this Christmas—a smoker. Before you select it, however, see the line of smokers at Mason Furniture.

MAKE MOTHER'S gift Revere Ware this Christmas—how she will love it and it will be a lasting reminder of your thoughtfulness. Made of beautiful copper-clad stainless steel, it is quick-heating and a lifetime utensil. You may get a set or just a separate piece. She would also enjoy having a utensil rack on which to display this beautiful ware. Racks sell for only $2.50. Stop in at Harpster and Yost and select mother's gift of Revere Ware today.

* * *

TEEN-AGE girls long for beautiful surroundings — give your daughter a Hollywood Bed especially designed for her, as her Christmas gift. She may select the material that will harmonize with the decor of her room and it will be made just as she wishes it. Ward's Upholstery will make a Hollywood Bed complete for as little as $25. Call 135 and make an appointment to select the material you wish from a large assortment of different fabrics.

* * *

CHRISTMAS would not be complete for the kiddies if among the gifts a Tinker Toy was not included. At Harpster and Yost a set of Tinker Toys for only $1.50 includes 118 parts and metal crank to make the models run. A child can build over 40 different structures with these rods and spools. Other sets are available from 50c to $2.50.

* * *

A BABY RING for the new arrival at Christmas time — something to get for the friend's new baby—his first ring, tiny bands of gold that sell as low as $1.50 at L. M. Butch Company, Jewelers.

* * *

A TEETORBABE would be a very appropriate gift for that small tot who is beginning to want amusement—it would save mother many hours of worry and care. Strong, sturdy frames of metal with a chair of heavy canvas that is built to last. At Mason Furniture they sell for $5.65.

GIVE THE girl friends identification bracelets, they'll love them—just a fad but how popular. At L. M. Butch Company, Jewelers they start at $3.75. They have them also in gold and silver.

* * *

A PICTURE window thru which to view the great outdoors—especially on Christmas—a white one we hope. Investigate the cost of a Truscon steel frame that would endure a lifetime. With it too there will be no rattle or warp. They are weather-tight so they also save fuel yet they cost no more than ordinary window—Basic Construction Materials.

* * *

LITTLE GIRLS are the housewives of tomorrow and it is only natural for them to love small pieces of furniture as playthings — Blue Furniture has a line of small tables and chairs that any small girl would love to find under her Christmas tree. Plastic top tables with 2 chairs, metal frames for only $9.95 and beautiful Maple tables, sturdily made for $17.95. The Maple tables and chairs are exceptionally well constructed and will last for years.

* * *

HERE'S A GIFT that the sportsman especially would like—a sturdy chrome plated barrel flashlight — position switch with signal button. Excellent for campers, for emergency use around the house and should be standard equipment in every car. The plated handle makes it so easily used. Only $1.95 at Harpster and Yost.

* * *

FOR JUNIOR'S gift to dad or his big brother a key-ring would be perfect. At L. M. Butch Company, Jewelers, the key chains start at $2.50 each and they are the kind that would be thoroughly appreciated.

* * *

IF YOU REALLY wish to please any mother or housewife—give her Christmas gifts for the home—occasional tables — she never has too many. A new cocktail table, a drum table or perhaps two step-end tables for either end of the davenport, maybe a lamp table with shelf or a two-drawer commode for the bedroom. When buying tables make certain they are Mersman the biggest name in tables. Remember tables are the costume jewelry of the home.

facts, unavailable to the people, must have been available to the President and his secretary of state.

They must have known the facts of the relations of nations within the Communist world; how policies were made in the Kremlin for the Cominform countries; that the Chinese Communists had been part of the Third International since 1920—active, effective, and recognized.

Someone in the State Department must have studied the vast files on the subject, beginning with the "Students Movement" in 1919 and proceeding to this day. Someone must have told Acheson of the training schools for Chinese Communists in Irkutsk, Leningrad and Moscow —of the Sun Yat-sen institute at Moscow.

Acheson's calculation of Europe first involved the cost of the Marshall Plan and European military aid. The Russians rejected Acheson's theory, following rather the conceptions of Lenin. They placed East Asia first on their program, conquering China, part of Korea and paving the way to India.

The Korean war completely and finally disposes of the policy of containment. Its failure has forced every other country to reexamine its own policies and reappraise its situation. It has thrown all the world into confusion and has imperilled America.

Trojans Score Smashing 54-34 Win Over Dublin

Darby Trojans took to the road Tuesday to humble Dublin with a smashing 54-34 victory on the Dublin court.

The Trojan quintet posted a substantial 15-7 advantage in the first period, then substituted freely to give its reservists experience.

Walter Kreider was high point man for the victorious Trojans in the clash with a total of 16 points, trailed by Teammate Cliff Chaffin, who tallied 14. Dublin's McKittrick was high for the losers with a total of 13 points.

Darby reservists made the evening complete for Trojan by battling down to a 29-27 victory in a thriller over the Dublin subs. The victory was the fifth in a row for the Trojan reserves.

Jackson 'Cats Suffer 63-50 Loss To Amanda

Jackson Wildcat cagers were tamed Tuesday when Amanda invaded the Jackson home court to hand the Cats a 63-50 defeat.

Jackson began its contest against Amanda with a 14-13 margin in the first period, although faltering to trail at half-time by 32-26.

Amanda's Loy was top scorer in the tilt with a total of 20 points, while R. Neff led Wildcat scoring with a total of 15 points.

Jackson's reserve Cat team also faltered in the evening's opener, losing by a 34-21 margin to the invading reservists.

The Jackson Wildcats will move into Atlanta Friday to meet the Red Raiders in a Pickaway County Basketball League skirmish. Box score of Tuesday's varsity loss follows:

John Valentine, John Cockrell Given Honors

Two of Circleville's outstanding 1950 gridiron players have received honors in the annual Associated Press All-Ohio team selection.

They are Big John Valentine, powerhouse fullback for the Tigers this season, and veteran tackle John Cockrell, extra-point specialist.

Both boys were named to the honorable mention list on the AP honor team, chosen by coaches, sportswriters and sportscasters.

The honor was the second of its kind for Big John, who also earned honorable mention on the International News Service "dream team."

* * *

THE CIRCLEVILLE pair was exclusive in the selection in that they were among only four central Ohio lads selected for singular honors during the poll.

Upper Arlington's deer-footed Doug Goodsell, dubbed "Mr. Touchdown," was the outstanding favorite on the AP first team selection.

Other outstanding Ohio high school players ranking on the AP first team were:

Bob Harris of Barberton and Jerry Ford of Akron South, ends; Don Swartz of Newark and Sam Palumbo of Cleveland Collinwood, tackles; Jim Reichenbach of Massillon and Jack Appel of Portsmouth, guards; Dick Szymanski of Toledo Libbey, center; Don Bucci of Youngstown East, quarterback; Ray Perkins of Lakewood, halfback with Goodsell; and Bob Howe of Massillon, fullback.

Williamsport Is Victor

Williamsport's Deers got off to a slow start in their game against Madison Mills Friday night, but when they did get rolling there was no stopping.

When the final gun sounded, Williamsport had chalked up a 55-43 victory.

At the end of the first quarter, however, it appeared as if the Deers were in for a rough evening. They trailed 13-11. At the half, Williamsport had edged into a 27-24 lead and were never threatened in the last half.

CHS Cagers Handed 53-37 Defeat In Season Opener

Circleville high school's 1950 basketball season opened with a thud Tuesday night as it absorbed a 53-37 defeat at the hands of Columbus Aquinas in Pickaway County Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Both teams advanced cautiously and awkwardly during the first period of the contest, although Aquinas awakened early in the second period to establish a lead over the Tigers.

Circleville showed its inexperience during its opening contest as it fell before the invaders, but the visiting team had its share of woe also, considering its control of the ball.

Aquinas dominated play during the second and third periods of the fracas, controlling both backboards and shifting into high gear with fast-break tactics.

THE CHS'ERS were unable to put their scoring machine into gear until the last canto of the contest, when they racked up a total of 16 points while allowing the visitors only 12.

Tiger Coach Dick West shifted his lineup constantly throughout the encounter in search of a scoring combination. At one time, the Tiger mentor had all five of last year's starting reserve team on the floor.

The Tigers were unable to operate a fast break or pivot plays during the test, still lacking the polish and poise necessary to convert from rugged football to court work.

Jim Cook, former Ashville cage star, provided the spark which kept the Tigers in the running during the low-scoring first quarter of the game as he bucketed twice to score four of the five points tallied by the Tigers in the opening period.

Although measuring at about par with the invaders, Circleville was unable to control its own backboard in the tilt. The Tigers managed to give trouble at the invaders' end of the court, however.

Aquinas surged to a 3-0 lead after three minutes of play had expired, scoring all three of its points from the charity toss line.

* * *

IN ALL, AQUINAS tried a total of 28 free throws during the fracas, netting 17 of them for a 60-percent average.

Circleville, on the other hand, attempted a total of 22 charity tosses and connected for only seven for a 31-percent average.

The Tigers were held at a virtual standstill in the second quarter of the tilt as Paul Bean of Aquinas paced his team to 31-15 halftime margin.

Jerry Rooney of Circleville clicked midway during the second period as he tallied six points on two baskets and a pair of free throws.

Circleville fell to a 20-point, 41-21 disadvantage by the end of the third stanza, although grasping itself by the bootstraps to put on its first scoring drive of the game during the final quarter to finish 16 points behind the invaders.

Lanky Paul Bean of Aquinas won scoring honors with his follow-up tactics as he marked a total of 21 points for the tilt.

* * *

BLAZING THE WAY for Circleville in scoring were Jerry Rooney and Jerry Pritchard, both of whom scored 10 points during the match. Both were members of last year's reserve quintet.

Circleville's reservists also were defeated in their opening match as Aquinas juniors handed them a 31-27 setback.

The reserve tilt was a touch-and-go affair from the opening tipoff and was settled on the charity toss line.

The Tiger juniors led off with a 7-3 advantage in the first period, although Aquinas reservists bounded back in the second quarter to deadlock the score at 14-all.

Aquinas dominated the third period of the tilt to waltz off with a 24-20 margin and maintained its lead to earn the victory by the same four-point advantage.

Forward Felice of the Aquinas junior aggregation was high scorer in the opening game with a total of 15 points, while Lanky Clarence Boyd tallied 10 points to lead scoring for Circleville.

* * *

CIRCLEVILLE attempted 23 free throws during the tilt, completed only three for an average of 13 percent. Aquinas tried about the same number of tosses although completing nine for a 40-percent mark.

The Circleville teams will try again for their first win of the season here Friday when Columbus North cagers invade Pickaway Coliseum.

Monroe '5' Bows To Mt. Sterling By 49-36 Margin

Monroe Indian cagers bowed before the power of invading Mt. Sterling basketeers on the Indian home court Tuesday to fall to a 49-36 defeat.

Both teams wrestled for the lead during the first three periods of play, with the Mt. Sterling team finishing on top in the final frame.

Mt. Sterling posted a 10-6 lead in the first period, although Monroe surged ahead by a 22-18 tally at the midmark.

The Indians bowed to the height and power of the Mt. Sterling attack in the third canto, however, to take the back seat in a 33-30 tally, dropping further behind in the final stanza to absorb the 49-36 defeat.

CHS Cagers Handed 53-37 Defeat In Season Opener

Circleville high school's 1950 basketball season opened with a thud Tuesday night as it absorbed a 53-37 defeat at the hands of Columbus Aquinas in Pickaway County Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Both teams advanced cautiously and awkwardly during the first period of the contest, although Aquinas awakened early in the second period to establish a lead over the Tigers.

Circleville showed its inexperience during its opening contest as it fell before the invaders, but the visiting team had its share of woe also, considering its control of the ball.

Aquinas dominated play during the second and third periods of the fracas, controlling both backboards and shifting into high gear with fast-break tactics.

THE CHS'ERS were unable to put their scoring machine into gear until the last canto of the contest, when they racked up a total of 16 points while allowing the visitors only 12.

Tiger Coach Dick West shifted his lineup constantly throughout the encounter in search of a scoring combination. At one time, the Tiger mentor had all five of last year's starting reserve team on the floor.

The Tigers were unable to operate a fast break or pivot plays during the test, still lacking the polish and poise necessary to convert from rugged football to court work.

Jim Cook, former Ashville cage star, provided the spark which kept the Tigers in the running during the low-scoring first quarter of the game as he bucketed twice to score four of the five points tallied by the Tigers in the opening period.

Although measuring at about par with the invaders, Circleville was unable to control its own backboard in the tilt. The Tigers managed to give trouble at the invaders' end of the court, however.

Aquinas surged to a 3-0 lead after three minutes of play had expired, scoring all three of its points from the charity toss line.

IN ALL, AQUINAS tried a total of 28 free throws during the fracas, netting 17 of them for a 60-percent average.

Circleville, on the other hand, attempted a total of 22 charity tosses and connected for only seven for a 31-percent average.

The Tigers were held at a virtual standstill in the second quarter of the tilt as Paul Bean of Aquinas paced his team to 31-15 halftime margin.

Jerry Rooney of Circleville clicked midway during the second period as he tallied six points on two baskets and a pair of free throws.

Circleville fell to a 20-point, 41-21 disadvantage by the end of the third stanza, although grasping itself by the bootstraps to put on its first scoring drive of the game during the final quarter to finish 16 points behind the invaders.

Lanky Paul Bean of Aquinas won scoring honors with his follow-up tactics as he marked a total of 21 points for the tilt.

BLAZING THE WAY for Circleville in scoring were Jerry Rooney and Jerry Pritchard, both of whom scored 10 points during the match. Both were members of last year's reserve quintet.

Circleville's reservists also were defeated in their opening match as Aquinas juniors handed them a 31-27 setback.

The reserve tilt was a touch-and-go affair from the opening tipoff and was settled on the charity toss line.

The Tiger juniors led off with a 7-3 advantage in the first period, although Aquinas reservists bounded back in the second quarter to deadlock the score at 14-all.

Aquinas dominated the third period of the tilt to waltz off with a 24-20 margin and maintained its lead to earn the victory by the same four-point advantage.

Forward Felice of the Aquinas junior aggregation was high scorer in the opening game with a total of 15 points, while Lanky Clarence Boyd tallied 10 points to lead scoring for Circleville.

* * *

CIRCLEVILLE attempted 23 free throws during the tilt, completed only three for an average of 13 percent. Aquinas tried about the same number of tosses although completing nine for a 40-percent mark.

The Circleville teams will try again for their first win of the season here Friday when Columbus North cagers invade Pickaway Coliseum.

Monroe '5' Bows To Mt. Sterling By 49-36 Margin

Monroe Indian cagers bowed before the power of invading Mt. Sterling basketeers on the Indian home court Tuesday to fall to a 49-36 defeat.

Both teams wrestled for the lead during the first three periods of play, with the Mt. Sterling team finishing on top in the final frame.

Mt. Sterling posted a 10-6 lead in the first period, although Monroe surged ahead by a 22-18 tally at the midmark.

The Indians bowed to the height and power of the Mt. Sterling attack in the third canto, however, to take the back seat in a 33-30 tally, dropping further behind in the final stanza to absorb the 49-36 defeat.

MT. STERLING'S Brady, Richardson and Justice tied for scoring honors on the winning team during the game with 14 points each, although Monroe's Bob Haller earned game honors with a total of 19 points.

Monroe reserves made up in part for its varsity's defeat by posting a lopsided 28-14 win over the Mt. Sterling reserve quintet.

Box score of the varsity engagement follows:

Tiger Juniors To Meet Darby In Cage Debut

Circleville's junior high school basketball team will open its 1950 season Friday noon in Circleville high school gym.

Coach John Chilcote of the junior team said the opener will be against the junior high aggregation from Darby Township school, coached by John McPherson.

The Circleville junior team to date has been cut down to 19 members, Chilcote said, and has a schedule of eight games ahead of it.

In addition, the local junior team is expected to enter two invitational junior tournaments at the end of its season, one in Washington C. H. and one in Lancaster.

The Friday opener against Darby is to begin at about 12:15 p. m. Complete schedule of games carded for the team to date is:

Dec. 14—at Laurelville.
Dec. 21—Chillicothe.
Jan. 4—Laurelville.
Jan. 9—Washington C. H.
Jan. 18—Greenfield.
Jan. 25—at Chillicothe.
Feb. 7—at Washington C. H.

Dauthille Tops Philly Boxer

MONTREAL, Dec. 6—Laurent Dauthille of Paris won a unanimous ten-round decision over Otis Graham of Philadelphia last night before a crowd of 7500.

Dauthille had a decided edge throughout the whole bout and had Graham on the canvas for an automatic eight count in the fifth round. Each fighter weighed 157¾.
